After Darwin

In the Confederate army, as in all armies of all time, there were the few who took along scholarly books to read.

One of the most discussed was Charles Darwin's "On the Origin of Species by Means of Natural Selection." It had been published in November of 1859.

It was the consensus of these Confederates that there was ample evidence about them to suggest close kinship with the apes, and that while Mr. Darwin might conceivably be right about them, Gen. Robert E. Lee was an exception. No noble a man had not so descended.

This is the centennial of Darwin's book, and it is fascinating to look back and see how events of the 100 years have demonstrated its basic accuracy.

Monkey Trial

As a college student at Vanderbilt University in Nashville, I recall the excitement of the famed "Monkey trial" at Dayton, Tenn. The state was making a monkey of its official self by virtue of its law prohibiting the teaching of evolution. (The laws are still on the books in several states, but are observed in the breach.)

I recall tall, balding old Chancellor Kirkland standing before the student body in the chapel moving his jaw and lips in the movements which we all knew to be a preliminary settling of his false teeth before speech. When he did speak it was exciting.

"Young ladies and gentlemen," he said, "Vanderbilt University will continue to teach evolution. It is not a theory, but a proved fact. You will not excite your minds with folly and error."

A state of semi-hysteria meanwhile existed, not merely in Dayton, but throughout the commonwealth. The more fundamentalist ministers were near apoplexy. Mountebanks abounded. Their tents sprung up like mushrooms after long rains. Several of these predicted Chancellor Kirkland would be struck dead by a Jehovahian bolt. In Dayton where Clarence Darrow, thumbs in his gaiters, demolished William Jennings Bryan, making even his ardent admirers see how ridiculous the old man was, there was an incredible, undiminished crescendo of street preaching, hawking of religious tracts and a great bawling in the tents as they waited for the Lord to strike Clarence Darrow dead in the court room.

Darwin, of course, never said that man had apes as ancestors. Man was merely one of the many forms created, and he, like they, has changed to meet the changes of a changing world. That man and apes are closely related is obvious from looking. But he is not man's ancestor, as Darwin carefully explained.

Today

In possession of today's knowledge and discoveries few believe, or wish to believe, that man and the lesser life forms have existed unchanged since the beginning of time. For those who believe in a Creator, it is comforting to know that man, of all created life, has the developing, thinking brain, and that he has a higher destiny. For the believer this is the meaning of the story in Genesis wherein the Lord created man out of the dust and breathed life and a soul into him.

Thomas Huxley, the great biologist, supported Darwin. When Darwin was buried with honor at Westminster Abbey in 1882, a visitor asked Huxley if he believed Darwin was right. "Certainly," said Huxley.

"What a pity he couldn't have kept it to himself," sighed the disturbed Britisher.

At another time Samuel Wilberforce, famed Bishop of Oxford, demanded of Huxley that he say on which side of his family the ape was.

Huxley, knowing Wilberforce was distorting Darwin, said, coldly: "I should be sorry to demolish so eminent a prelate, but for myself I would rather be descended from an ape than from a divine who employs authority to demolish truth."

For the thoughtful believer there is more satisfaction and sustaining of belief in evolution since it gives man a steady climb toward a higher destiny in the unfolding future.

2 Kidnap Trucker,

Two gunmen posing as revenue agents early Tuesday kidnaped a driver, locked him in the trunk of an automobile and stripped his truck of whisky and wine valued at $10,500, DeKalb County police said.

Boy's Father
Hikes Here

An anxious father Tuesday walked and hitch-hiked 100 miles to identify his three-month-old baby boy after seeing a picture of the infant in the morning paper.

But the family reunion was still far from complete.

Police said they had not been able to find a trace of his wife and 4-year-old son who vanished at the same time the baby was left in the restroom of a downtown bus station on Monday.

The baby, Charles Coggins, remained as a boarder at Grady Hospital, Detectives J. O. Fincher and L. F. Buhr said. The infant had been placed under the temporary custody of juvenile court while they continued a search for the mother, Mrs. Martha Coggins, and 4-year-old brother, John Wesley Coggins Jr.

Search for the missing mother and son centered in New Orleans, where they were believed to have gone with a single sister of Mrs. Coggins.

Coggins, obviously distraught and worn after a 20-hour search for his missing family, appealed to his wife to get in touch with him so that the family could be reunited.

Coggins, a mechanic, told police

Turkey, Poland
Still Tied in U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI). The United Nations General Assembly went through six more ballots Tuesday without approaching a break in the record deadlock between American-supported Turkey and Soviet-backed Poland for a seat on the Security Council.

The voting, which began Oct. 12 and has been held on five days since, reached the 49th ballot with Poland leading 42 to 39. It was the largest number of ballots ever taken on such an issue. A two-thirds vote is necessary for election to the council.

Hearing on Pupil PlanHooper to Hear
Both Sides Dec. 14

A federal judge set a hearing for Dec. 14 on Atlanta's plan for desegregating its public schools Tuesday as it became more and more evident that the plan is in for sharp attacks from all sides.

On one hand, Gov. Vandiver in a terse news conference statement said his opposition to any school integration has not subsided. He refused to comment further, but Capitol reporters saw outright opposition to the plan in the governor's prepared statement.

The plan, drafted at court order by the Atlanta Board of Education, calls for a statewide pupil placement law to replace present segregation statutes and theoretically could permit at least token integration.

NOT HAPPY

Meanwhile, Negro attorneys who fought a successful battle in federal court against segregation in Atlanta's schools made it clear that they are not happy with the Board of Education plan.

E. E. Moore Jr., chief counsel for the Negro parents who brought the desegregation suit against the school board, said the plaintiffs' attorneys will detail their objections to the federal court.

U.S. District Judge Frank A. Hooper, who heard the suit and issued the resulting desegregation order, said in Rome Tuesday he will hold a hearing here Dec. 14 to determine whether the plan meets the requirements of the "both sides" order.

He said he would hear "both sides" but would not comment further.

If Judge Hooper accepts the plan, it still would have to be approved by the Georgia General Assembly and possibly would require an amendment to the State Constitution before it could be implemented. Many observers feel that Gov. Vandiver's attitude toward the plan may be a major determining factor in the Legislature's disposition of it.

Crime Dips 11 Pct. Here
Despite Rise in U.S.

Major crime in Atlanta dropped approximately 11 per cent during November, reversing an upward trend that began during October, a survey of crime reports showed Tuesday.

Atlanta's downward trend also was directly opposite to a general increase in crime over other sections of the country.

In five Atlanta crime categories compared with a similar period of last year, only robberies showed an increase during November. A total of 42 robberies occurred here in November, 10 more than in November, 1958.

The largest decrease percentage wise was in rapes. Two rapes were reported for November, compared with 11 for the same month last year.

Homicides were cut almost in half, with seven listed for November and 13 reported for the same month last year.

Trouble With Downtown

Is Rapid Transit
Traffic Solution?

By TED LIPPMAN

"The automobile is wonderful. It's the way to go. But it's impossible to try to rely on it in a metropolitan area like this."—Robert Somerville, president, Transit Co.

Only a few people live downtown in Atlanta. (Some that do, those in slums, are going to be

Gridiron-Size Crater

LONDON (AP)—A huge meteorite is believed to have struck the Outer Hebrides in the past few days.

A crater the size of a football field was spotted Monday by mailman Duncan McDonald on the island of Lewis, one of the 500 islands of the Hebrides off the west coast of Scotland.

A stream he usually crossed was almost bursting its banks. A small lake had disappeared.

"I could smell burning—it seemed to me there had been an explosion," MacDonald said.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Retiring Secretary of Defense McElroy disclosed Tuesday he has ordered preparations for a U.S. airborne bomber alert to make up for a potential missile gap between this country and Russia in the early 1960s.

The disclosure came at a swansong news conference McElroy held on his last day in office as the nation's defense chief. A few hours earlier, President Eisenhower accepted McElroy's resignation and named Deputy Secretary of Defense Thomas S. Gates Jr. to succeed him.

In a letter to the President, McElroy, 54, said he was quitting after two years in the Cabinet for "personal reasons of an urgent nature." He plans to return to Procter & Gamble, the

U.S. Spending Imperils
Economy, Stans Warns

(Copyright 1959 by the New York Times Co.)

NEW YORK—Maurice H. Stans, director of the U.S. Bureau of the Budget, warned Americans Tuesday night that government spending was gaining a momentum that threatened to wreck the economy.

He said that even now the public debt and future commitments often overlooked in considering the country's position reach "the almost incredible total of about $750 billion," apart from annual operating expenses.

Stans predicted an annual budget of $90 to $100 billion within a few years unless steps were taken to cut back on few programs and eliminate some old ones.

His remarks came in a speech after he received the annual award of the Tax Foundation for Distinguished Public Service at a dinner here.

He said "government has to stop

GM Recalling 2,500 Here
But Lockheed Faces Layoffs

By JIM MONTGOMERY

Dec. 14, the date originally set for all three GM plants here.

2. Between 900 and 1,000 Lockheed employees will be affected by Air Force cancellation of a multi-million-dollar B70 triple-sonic bomber subcontract on which the Marietta plant has been working since last spring.

W. A. Pulver, vice president in charge of Lockheed's Georgia Division, said "every effort will be made to reassign" the 900 to 1,000 persons involved in the B70 project here.

He added, "It is apparent that additional layoffs will be necessary," but gave no estimate of how many.

Another official said the Georgia Division has laid off about 1,000 persons since midsummer, when total employment reached a 1959 peak of 15,000. He said layoffs since that time have been at a rate of about 50 a week and had been expected to come to an end before Christmas. But the B70 contract loss will mean additional cuts from the current level of 14,600, he said.

An Air Force spokesman in Washington told The Constitution that Lockheed thus far has been paid $7.5 million for work on the

Khrushchev Rattles His Atom Missiles

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev boasted again Tuesday of enough nuclear rockets to raze all his foes, and declared world disarmament must be solved along with the Berlin question.

The Soviet leader spoke at the seventh congress of the Hungarian Communist party, the first since the 1956 revolution that overthrew Communist rule only to be crushed by Soviet tanks.

Declaring agreement on an East-West summit meeting has practically been reached, Khrushchev said he agrees with West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer that disarmament is the first order of business at such a meeting.

WANTS CONTROLS TOO

The Soviet Union, he said, wants universal disarmament with "the most comprehensive and profound control" and is willing to destroy a whole stockpile of rockets with nuclear warheads which he declared could "raze to the ground all our potential enemies."

"But in order to have confidence on both sides, we must settle the issue of West Berlin," he went on.

He accused Adenauer of being an "obstinate soloist" using "bovine logic" in seeking to maintain West Berlin as an occupied city.

WOULD SIGN SEPARATELY

This occupation regime, he said, means "a desire to pursue a policy directed against socialist states, to heat the atmosphere, to continue the positions of strength policy."

Repeating his proposal for a free city in West Berlin, Khrushchev said "we set no deadlines, present no ultimatums" but if all other means of settlement fail the Soviet Union will sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany.

Khrushchev traced a relaxation in world tension to his talks with British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan last spring, his visit to the United States last September, and his U.N. proposal for total disarmament. But he declared the Soviet Union never will abandon her ideology or surrender the "socialist gains" of East Germany.

WANTS FRUITFUL TALKS

He denied he has cooled toward a summit conference, and declared the sooner it is held the better.

"We want this meeting, but we want it to be fruitful," he said. He used nearly half his speech blaming former Stalinist leaders for the 1956 anti-Soviet revolt here. He said the present Hungarian leader, Janos Kadar, "boldly took the road of resolutely correcting mistakes" after the 1956 revolt.

Bonn Says 'No' to Paris Atom Plan

PARIS (UPI)—West Germany took issue Tuesday with President De Gaulle's idea that western Europe should evolve itself as a third atomic power between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Bonn government spokesman Felix Eckardt made the German stand clear at a press briefing wrapping up the first day of Chancellor Adenauer's state visit to Paris. Adenauer had talks Tuesday with Premier Debre and will have a three-hour conference with De Gaulle Wednesday.

The two leaders see eye-to-eye on many things. But Eckardt made it clear they do not include De Gaulle's concept of continental Europe as a third world force between "the Russians and the Anglo-Saxons."

"I don't think it is possible to create a third force of equivalent atomic power between the two atomic giants," Eckardt told reporters in response to a question about the project De Gaulle announced at his Nov. 10 press conference.

The Bonn press chief said that in his press conference De Gaulle presented a situation which cannot be denied—that Western Europe lies between two giant atomic powers.

But he said Adenauer saw the answer to this situation only in disarmament.

Wounded Prisoner Sobs at Cuba Trial

By HAROLD K. MILKS

HAVANA (AP)—Stretcher-bearers carried a weeping American ex-associate of Fidel Castro before a military tribunal late Tuesday to defend himself against a possible death sentence. He is accused of counter-revolutionary activity.

Rafael del Pino, 33, of Miami, Fla., a Cuban-born naturalized U.S. citizen wounded by police bullets in his capture last July, went on trial with Luciano Linera, 24, a Cuban who once studied at Columbia University, New York, as leaders of an antigovernment band in west Cuba's hills. The demand drew a defense warning of repercussions in the United States.

The military prosecutor has demanded death for both defendants.

BREAKS DOWN, CRIES

Flat on the stretcher, Del Pino broke down and cried when he was borne into the courtroom in La Cabana Fortress.

But he told the tribunal: "These tears are the tears of a man, not a coward. I am not afraid to die. I cry because they refused (in prison) to let me see my mother."

The Havana hearing is the second in the trials by military tribunals that were revived this week after a four-month halt. Prime Minister Castro called in a speech at Santiago Monday night for the firing squad for counter-revolutionaries.

39 OTHERS WAIT

Two other Americans and 37 Cuban codefendants waited in Pinar del Rio for the verdicts, expected Wednesday, of the first tribunal to swing into action against persons accused of conspiring to overthrow Castro's regime.

The prosecution there demanded execution of Frank Austin Young, 38, an Indianapolis-born commercial pilot from Miami, Fla., and Fernando Pruno Bertot, 24, a Cuban who once studied at Columbia University, New York, as leaders of an antigovernment band in west Cuba's hills. The demand drew a defense warning of repercussions in the United States.

Thirty-year prison terms were asked for Peter John Lambton, 24, a naturalized American from

London Makes Up With Cairo

LONDON (UPI)—Britain and the United Arab Republic announced the resumption of diplomatic relations Tuesday—a little more than three years after the Suez expedition that made them bitter enemies and nearly touched off a new world war.

A joint statement released in London and Cairo said the two governments would exchange only charge d'affaires for the time being. Appointment of full-fledged ambassadors was expected later, perhaps late next year or early in 1961.

The decision to resume diplomatic ties followed prolonged behind-the-scenes negotiations in Cairo and at United Nations headquarters in New York.

France, which was allied with Britain in the Suez operation, still has not resumed diplomatic negotiations with President Nasser's regime.

Informed French sources in Paris said that France was not likely to follow Britain's lead in restoring diplomatic relations with Cairo. The French have resumed commercial relations with U.A.R., but the Algerian question has complicated the diplomatic situation.

British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd read the text of the joint announcement to the House of Commons and added amid ironical cheers from the Laborite opposition, "Her majesty's government welcomes this development."

Thor-Fired Nose Cone Lost in Sea

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI). A nose cone carrying a camera to film color pictures of the earth from 300 miles in the sky plunged back into the Atlantic Ocean Tuesday and was lost.

The Air Force suddenly called off a search and recovery effort 90 minutes after the nose cone was hurled upward on an intermediate range Thor missile. It was believed that a radio beacon installed in the cone failed.

The intended impact area was some 1,700 miles down the Atlantic missile range. The film, if recovered, would have been rushed by plane to a processing station in this first color-filming attempt, part of a weather reconnaissance test series.

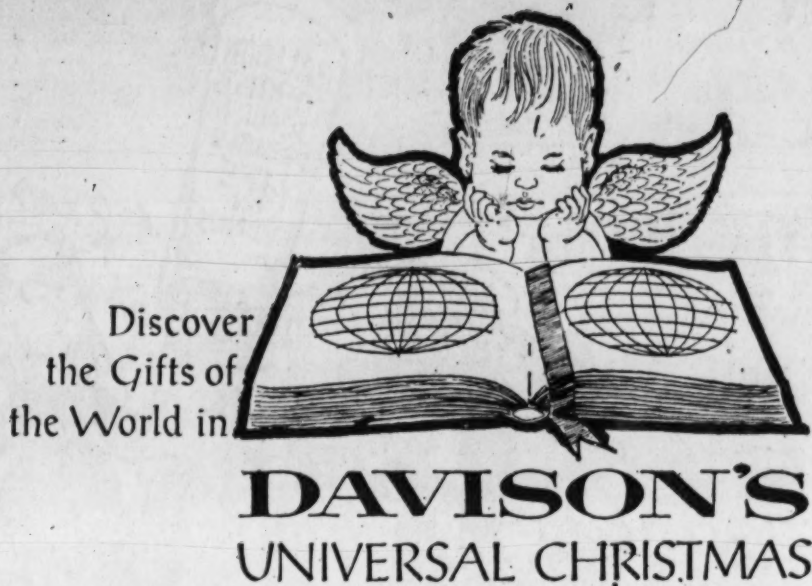

The 16-millimeter camera was encased in a data capsule at the base of the nose cone. The cone itself was equipped with a heat shield to protect the equipment from heat and shock. It was fired in daylight to afford maximum light exposure and best recovery conditions.

Choice Is Simple: Renewal or Decay

Postponement by the Board of Aldermen of the decision on rezoning the old Eggleston Hospital site for a low-rent public housing development will be a wise move in view of the heated dispute which has arisen.

The proposed 350-unit project is merely part of a package of 1,000 units of public housing deemed the minimum necessary in the program to relocate some 10,000 families to be displaced by urban renewal. The U.S. Public Housing Administration insists that the other 650-unit project, proposed for a site near Hightower and Bankhead roads, also be included in relocation plans.

Since the 1,000 units were the minimum accepted by the federal government in Atlanta's urban renewal plan, blocking of either one or the other conceivably could block the entire renewal program. We cannot believe that Atlantans want this to happen. They have accepted and believe in the necessity for slum clearance and redevelopment.

We can understand the problems, real or imagined, of those directly affected in the renewal program. We can sympathize with them. But these are small indeed compared with the consequences of continued blight and the spread of decay. Results of the latter in plain language will be utter chaos.

While delays in getting renewal under way are regrettable, if the problems can be worked out in a period of a few weeks it will be better than stopping the program.

Meanwhile, the Board of Aldermen and all interests concerned must face up to the question of whether we are to go ahead with renewal or whether we want progressive decay. The whole future of the city depends on the answer. Surely that future requires some sacrifices and compromises of clashing interests for the good of all.

Difficulties encountered thus far in relocation of displaced families have been overcome successfully. And satisfactory relocation is a proper requirement. After all, you cannot just turn people into the streets. But the relocation problem remains as the biggest threat to success of the whole program.

So the Board of Aldermen and all the people of Atlanta must make up their minds to find ways to remove roadblocks to urban renewal or to prepare to pay the price of slums and decay.

Networks Must Accept Own Responsibilities

While some of the clamor about the television scandals has subsided, the problem stays. There is still a need for a cleanup and for improving network practices and programs.

Responsibility for doing so still rests squarely with the TV networks themselves, a fact pointed out again the other day by Dr. Frank Stanton, president of Columbia Broadcasting System. And Dr. Stanton finds the other network giant, NBC, goes along with him in saying, "We accept that responsibility."

How it is accepted and what positive steps are taken in the next few weeks will determine what the federal government, fully supported by public opinion, will do in the way of firmer controls to protect the public. Unless television and radio networks clean their own houses, public opinion will force strong public action.

There are, of course, other factors. There are the stations, the producers, the advertisers and the advertising agencies. These, along with the networks, have a responsibility to the viewing public. The networks, however, must take the lead.

The greatest failure in broadcasting has been a lack of responsibility on the part of the industry itself. Continued failure will bring on strong and determined government action to force the networks to do what they should do voluntarily.

America Is Becoming Nation of Homeowners

America continues to become a nation of homeowners with great effect upon our economic and social patterns. This fact is brought out clearly in a recent study by the Federal Reserve Board of consumer finances.

The board found that the number of homeowners has risen from 20 million early in 1949 to nearly 29 million at the beginning of this year, a rise of 44 per cent in a decade. As a result, a decided majority of American families now own their own homes—58 per cent of all non-farm families this year as compared with 51 per cent 10 years before. Home ownership ratio was never as high as 50 per cent prior to World War II.

The rise in home-ownership, of course, has been accompanied by a huge increase in the levels of installment debt.

Total mortgage debt on non-farm, owner-occupied homes rose 73 billion dollars in the past decade to a total of 106 billions at the beginning of this year. Basic to this increase was availability of mortgage funds from the people's savings institutions.

Rising population and family needs, expansion of personal incomes and the uptrend in standards of living could not have been translated into home-ownership except for the role of personal savings in thrift institutions, insurance policies and banks.

Economists hope that a continued healthy economy will provide the necessary savings and mortgage funds for continued expansion.

Pupil Placement Plan Or Close the Schools?

There is time for all to study the pupil placement plan which the Atlanta school board, under court order, has filed for study.

There is a hint that at least some legislators are willing to give it the necessary study.

We are up against reality. The state laws which the Legislature passed are similar to those already knocked down in other states, Virginia and Arkansas among them, as unconstitutional.

It is important to know what the Supreme Court has said. In plain language it has declared that no plans of evasion or any laws designed to thwart the 1954 decision will be allowed to stand.

It is a tragedy that the fanatics and the more extreme voices continue to deceive the people of the state in charging that an attempt is being made to integrate Atlanta schools. This is wholly false. The contrary is true. Attorney for the Atlanta board has been and is B. D. (Buck) Murphy, a die-hard opponent of the court decision. He has guided the board, which has resisted through every known legal means.

Mr. Murphy knows that the decision is one of a placement law, which controls entry of qualified students, or no public schools at all. State laws give no protection. They will stand only until tested in the federal courts. Mr. Murphy, whose distaste for the Supreme Court is strong, still is not willing to deceive the people of Atlanta or the state with false statements.

The NAACP has announced it will challenge the pupil placement plan sent to the court by the school board. This is routine. The court itself will look at the plan and will determine whether it is constitutional.

The Legislature, we hope, will keep first in mind the children. There is no reason why those school boards, confronted with a decision, should not be allowed to do what they can to carry out court orders. This would save other areas of the state from similar suits for a long time to come. Some of them could "buy" years of time simply by enabling cities under court order to comply with a placement law.

This would be good politics. It is morally right. It also is the only course open if education is to be saved.

British Socialists Face Change or Extinction

A follow-up to Britain's recent election in which the Labor Party soundly was defeated has come out of the Socialist Party's meeting to determine its future.

The chairman, Hugh Gaitskell, led off by declaring that the Socialist Party must revamp its policies and discard nationalization. It no longer fitted today's industrial development, he said, when hired managers run industries, not owners. He is for supervisory laws, not nationalization.

For this he vigorously was attacked by left-wing leaders in the party, all of whom had been defeated in attempts to win seats in the Commons.

But when the vote was taken, the man regarded as the most radical of all, Aneurin Bevan, swung his strength behind the moderate view and refused to assist those wanting the party to go further to the political and economic left. In the election to the party board the candidate representing the extreme left was defeated. Bevan, to be sure, disagreed with Gaitskell on some major points, including nationalization of key industries. But he did not wish to go to extremes.

This means that British Socialists, like those of Germany, will not set out to produce a program which they hope will attract young voters and the independents.

The plain truth is that, save for nationalization which is no longer practical, the aims of the Socialists of 50 years ago and more have all been written into law in Britain and this country. The law of change has caught up with the old-line Socialists. They must reorganize or die out as a political force.

Ticket Scalping at Sports Events Termed Deplorable Practice That Public Can End

Columbus — It has been my pleasure for a long time to obtain a copy of The Constitution and read it every day. That is how I came across the story about the scalpers in Atlanta last week with wads of tickets for the football game. One lady was so disgusted with this racket that she told the scalper that she wished it would both rain and snow and no doubt she meant every word of it.

I know little about football but others do and they delight in attending games and are willing to pay a reasonable price. But the scalpers know that there are many fools who will pay any price, hence the scalper and his graft. However, please remember that he does not get all the profit and the tickets would not be available without the use of some inside influence.

There are laws on the books in all cities which if they were enforced would stop this racket overnight. Of course, if the people would not buy the tickets the scheme would die out of its own volition but the scalpers know that fools are still abundant. There would not be a moonshiner or bootlegger in this state nor in any other state if the people would not buy the poison. The people are just as much to blame as the scalpers or booze peddlers. All of it can be eliminated. It is up to the people.

Are Castro's Actions Product of Lunacy?

Atlanta — The report appearing in Drew Pearson's column to the effect that the anti-American demonstrations in the Canal Zone were promoted by Castro agents could very well be. But what many of us wonder is why the Cuban leader has chosen to be anti-American to the great detriment of his nation and his people.

While many of us, particularly Democrats, feel the temptation to put some of the blame of the mishandling of foreign affairs on the Republican administration in Washington, the fact remains that in the case of Castro he bears most of the blame, if not all of it, for deliberately making inflammatory accusations against every thing American, including the leaders, the people and the nation as a whole.

If anyone could read Castro's mind he would find that he is either misinformed, distorted or close to the fringe of political lunacy.

Latin-American Relations Leave Door Open to Reds

If the United States does not develop better relations with Latin America, Soviet Russia is going to carry out a successful infiltration from the Rio Grande to Tierra del Fuego. That is the forecast of a study prepared by the University of New Mexico for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

It has been apparent almost since World War II ended that a social revolution is in progress among our neighbors to the south. We cannot deny that we had a part in setting the stage for this change. We made heavy expenditures and purchases in some of the countries and then abruptly stopped when the war ended. We did little to ease the transition to a postwar economy. The failure played a part in some of the turbulence that ensued.

As to what to do now the report gives good counsel: "The United States, both in its aid program and general attitude, should make more distinction between high-handed military dictatorship and struggling civilian democracy."

Let us hope and wish that sanity will be restored by the more moderate elements in Cuba and that they will improve relations with their neighbors and more particularly with the United States.

'TV Should Depict Best in a Culture'

Sandersville — In the good old days of radio the family could sit in the living room with the assurance that it would be entertained and not embarrassed, shocked or assumed to have the intelligence of 6-year-olds.

TV which we thought would be a great medium of entertainment and education has almost failed with only a few exceptions. Americans are an intelligent and moral people and I am sure that many cups are running over with many fine comedies and brutal Western and detective stories.

We are part of all our experiences. I cannot help but wonder just how much influence this violence and immorality is having upon the youth of our country. There certainly is a correlation between the crimes of our youth and their TV education.

Is it impossible for the TV people to give us a better grade program or are we feeling what we actually want? I get that programs should depict the best of our moral, spiritual and social life and not just the worst which is greatly in the minority. If this were done TV would be a God-send blessing but if the trend continues it will be an instrument from below. Since TV is here to stay, like country music, let us pray that it will become an asset to our American way of life and not a liability.

Red China, Soviets Called One in Policy

Searcy, Ark.—Those who think that there is any real split between Red China and Red Russia are victims of Communist psychological warfare. Points of friction there may be but these two governments are not only bound by a common ideological faith but also by a need for one another.

Does the following from a top Chinese Red sound like a split? "The countries of the socialist camp headed by the Soviet Union..." (Chairman Liu Shao-chi's...)

statement on Sept. 28 at meeting celebrating the 10th anniversary of the founding of Red China).

"In the sphere of foreign relations, People's China has proudly taken her place in the Socialist camp headed by the Soviet Union and adamantly opposes the aggression and provocation of the U.S. imperialism." (Editorial, Peking Review, Oct. 1, 1959, p.3).

Keep the Birds On the Wing

The story started out 60 years ago with the Arkansas Traveler. The ruralist had started to town with a caged quail in a cage behind a mule.

By day the birds fluttered and the mule made it along fine. At night the quail settled to roost and the animal couldn't budge the cart. Now comes the story up-to-date from various sources including a post-game session at Clemson.

Motorists watched first in curiosity, then in frustration, as the driver of a large truck stopped at intervals and pounded violently on the sides of the vehicle. At last one motorist was driven to asking the driver why all the pounding.

The trucker said, "You see it's this way. This is a six-ton truck and I'm carrying seven tons of parakeets. I have to keep at least a ton of them in the air."

RESULTS: The other day I heard a professional man chastise a group of fellow professionals for certain delinquencies.

Then he said, "What I have said no doubt has irritated you. Irritation causes inflammation. Inflammation leads to treatment. Treatment brings healing."

Isn't it often so — we must be irritated into remedial action? QUALIFIED: Dr. Merrill Awrey, Marietta, qualifies for "former farmers of America" by showing he knows harness from martingale to crupper, not to mention sending me a holster for that extra pair of specs.

AMEN: This gem, a Columbian's Prayer, comes from The Builder, weekly publication of the occupational therapy department at Milledgeville State Hospital. I am grateful to the kindly person who keeps me on the mailing list:

"I pray Thee, make my column read; And give me thus my daily bread. Endow me, if Thou grant me wit, Likewise with sense to melow it. Save me from feeling so much hate My food will not assimilate. Open my eyes that I may see The world with more of charity, And less on me in good intents And make me friends of innocence. Make me (sometimes, at least) discreet; Help me hide my self-conceit; And give me courage now and then To be as dull as are most men, And give me readers quick to see When I am satirizing me."

Let's Safeguard Officials Abroad

In Bombay, India, Chinese Reds kidnap and mail a U.S. Marine attached to the American Embassy. A few hours later Chinese attacked and tried to kidnap an Indian messenger carrying coded messages for our embassy. What do we do about it? We send a note in protest.

In Panama, rioters shouting, "Gringo, go home," burned Uncle Sam in effigy and threw rocks at American soldiers defending the Canal Zone.

What did we do about that? We turned fire hoses on them and squirted them with a little tear gas.

In Cuba, 90 miles from the U.S. mainland, it is inevitable that within the next few months American property is going to be destroyed and Americans are going to be killed or hurt.

What will we do when that happens? We'll probably send another note.

In Formosa, a couple of years ago I saw an American lieutenant with a badly bruised face. A Chinese soldier had hit him with his fist. The American was a pilot. He had delivered a fighter airplane to the government of Chiang Kai-shek. He flew it from Japan loaded with ammunition. The plane was to be turned over to the Chinese but the ammunition was to remain under our control. When the lieutenant found the Chinese soldier taking the ammunition he told him to leave it alone. The soldier hit him. What did we do about that? Nothing. We kept on turning over to the Nationalist government millions in military supplies and the technical know-how to help them build up Formosa.

An Air Force officer on an official mission for his government deserves the protection of that government. A consul, an ambassador, an attaché, a representative of the U.S. Information Service serving abroad should not live in fear of their personal safety in any country in the world. Embassies, consulates and the homes of U.S. representatives abroad are under diplomatic law sovereign soil of the United States. The lives of these people, their homes and their places of work should be protected.

So the time has come, I think, to start gently bloodying a few noses. In many areas of the world we are dealing with people as unpredictable and unruly as children. We try to help them and we ought to help them. But at the same time we ought to stand ready to protect ourselves with all the force that's necessary. If it takes a battalion of Marines or a division of airborne troops let's send them. Let's make it clear we want to be friends but if anybody wants trouble they can have it and plenty of it in a hurry.

I'd make a poor diplomat: I guess. But we might as well stop kidding ourselves. Weakness is going to get us nowhere. The Communists will capitalize on weakness to make more and more trouble for us.

We've been speaking softly a long time and we ought to keep on speaking softly. But it's time to start swinging a bigger stick and rapping a few skulls with it if we have to.

Nixon, Rockefeller Avoid Feud Issue

WASHINGTON—The anxious question in the minds of many Republican leaders today is whether Vice President Nixon and Gov. Rockefeller can escape getting into a divisive, lacerating, mutually belittling, personal battle. Part of the answer—and it is reassuring—is that neither of the two principals, if I am correctly informed, wish or intend to get into a disparaging, name-calling campaign designed to undercut each other's stature.

The other part of the answer—and it is far from reassuring—is that already some of the active supporters of each are trying to foment a feud between Nixon and Rockefeller and to goad them into hitting the other below the belt.

There are two good reasons why the vice president and the governor themselves draw away from any such tactics. One is that on the basis of their intimate association during the first Eisenhower term they developed a high regard and esteem for each other. Rockefeller was often a "minority" adviser in the White House staff but he found Nixon on his side more often than any other member of the Cabinet. But apart from considerable admiration for each other they also realize that if they try to cut each other down to size they are likely to end up convincing too many voters that both are under-size for the presidency.

If there is to be a real Nixon-Rockefeller contest what each wants is to use it to help make the Republican nomination work having, that is, to improve the prospects of election. Rockefeller has twice shown that he is not disposed to be pressured into disparagement of Nixon. When a purposeful reporter asked him to comment on the "fact," as the reporter put it, that Nixon had said Rockefeller would not have advocated resuming nuclear tests if he knew what he was talking about, the governor corrected the reporter's statement, pointed out that Nixon had suggested that Rockefeller did not have all the facts and agreed that as a governor he might not have had all the facts. Rockefeller could easily have been goaded into a feud on that one but wasn't. This kind of thing is not all one-sided by any means. There are Nixon devotees who both imply and sometimes say openly that Rockefeller is not quite bright, that everything about him is "synthetic." That word crops up often among pro-Nixon people.

There are also dark whispers—easily heard across the room—that Rockefeller is plotting to "buy" the nomination, that Rockefeller is not really a Republican at all, that the "Rockefeller interests" are putting people on payrolls like mad for later use in the campaign.

Nixon and Rockefeller will need to restrain themselves and their supporters if they are to avoid a kind of humiliating battle which could end up making the next Republican nominee no more than titular leader of the party.

Gospel Is Source Of Mighty Power

"The greatest sermon ever preached by a Christian preacher is recorded in 1 Corinthians 15 and the first two verses of chapter 16. St. Paul begins, 'I declare unto you the gospel.' That is the first duty of every preacher. One may talk about history, discuss the events of the day, reveal his knowledge of other things and give an interesting sermon but it is only the gospel which really has power.

The word 'gospel' comes from two Greek words which mean 'good news' and that is what the gospel is.

To say that the world is bad may, in part, be true but it is not the gospel. Likewise, to say that a man is a sinner. But to proclaim the fact that there is a Saviour who can make the world good and can redeem a man from his sins, that is the gospel. When the gospel is preached it is a message of assurance and hope. It gives men a new faith, joy and peace.

A very capable and highly respected scientist recently was telling me about some of the new drugs which are available to help those who are mentally disturbed. I thanked God for what is being done in this field. That scientist also said to me, "We will never discover any drugs which can bring peace to a human life such as the peace I myself have found at the altar of our church." The gospel does work wonders.

I could introduce you to a man who was bankrupt both financially and in his life. The courts had taken what he had to apply on his debts and in his heart he felt only despair. He started going to a church which uses as its theme song on Sunday nights the little chorus, "Only believe, only believe, all things are possible, only believe." The sermons proclaimed the gospel that no man is hopeless, that there is a solution to every problem. These great truths began to take hold of that man's mind. I can tell you that he made a new start; now he has paid off every cent he owed. He has a good life.

We know of those who were heavily burdened by a load of guilt. They knew they had done wrong and felt bitter remorse. Then they heard the true gospel of forgiveness, believed, accepted its truths, met the conditions and found that their sins were taken away, the guilt removed and a new chance was theirs.

There are those who think preaching is silly, that listening to a sermon is a waste of time, that going to church is not worth the effort—but when the gospel is truly preached it has great power; it always does good. In this sermon Paul tells what the gospel is, which we shall discuss in this space tomorrow.

Training School Head Put on Probation

Gov. Vandiver placed the superintendent of the training school for colored girls at Macon on probation Tuesday after a Law department Criminal division report criticized her administration.

The action was taken against Miss Ruth L. Stevenson, who has been director for 15 years.

"... Many or all of the situations that developed at the training school may have been avoided with stronger administration, supervision and control of the school by Miss Stevenson, as well as other staff personnel," Assistant Atty. Gen. Joel S. Thwaites reported to the governor.

The investigation was begun after Fulton Juvenile Court Judge W. W. Woolfolk submitted to the governor statements taken from former inmates of the school, who related many instances of lurid and immoral behavior at the school.

One official of the school who was involved in the statements, Mrs. Rosa Mae Jefferson, was fired after being convicted of assault and battery on a former inmate.

The report said Miss Stevenson was aware Mrs. Jefferson had "spanked" girls. The superintendent "did not consider (the spankings) to be corporal punishment," the report continued. "She admitted that she also had 'spanked' a couple of the girls in order to discipline them," it added.

Concerning other charges against Miss Stevenson, the state investigation turned up only one girl who claimed personal knowledge of the charges. The girl later testified she had lied the first time.

Miss Stevenson submitted to a lie detector on the subject, the report stated, and the reading indicated she was telling the truth when she denied the charges.

Monroe Farmer Is Released In 'Self-Defense' Slaying

MONROE — A Walton County farmer has been freed in connection with the shotgun shooting of a Winder carpenter on Thanksgiving Day.

Justice of the Peace Otto Preston ordered Charlie Davis, a farmer in his late 30s, set free after a commitment hearing. He had been held on an open charge since the incident.

Davis claimed self-defense in the fatal shooting of Dupree Darby, about 38, who lived near Winder.

Sheriff Lewis Howard quoted Davis as saying Darby arrived at the Davis home and asked to see Mrs. Davis.

When the farmer said she was not at home, the sheriff related, Darby forced his way into the house. Davis then killed him with a shotgun, the sheriff said.

VACUETTS, new medical discovery, do not pass thru stomach. Give gentle relief for most people in 10 to 30 minutes!

Doctors have always known that the best way to relieve constipation is directly where your constipation is, in the clogged lower bowel. Now there is a new medical discovery, called Vacuets, which gives this direct relief... relief which is faster and gentler than any laxative.

When you consider how most laxatives work, you'll soon realize how it is possible for them to leave you feeling upset or not properly relieved. Laxatives that you swallow pass through your stomach and upper digestive tract. This not only takes time, but it can also interfere with the digestive process, causing intestinal churning, cramping, or delayed relief.

What a difference with Vacuets! They never even go near your stomach! Vacuets are a totally new kind of suppository. You insert Vacuets rectally and retain in your lower bowel. Within a short time you feel the same urge that you have before a normal bowel movement. No gripping, no digestive upset. And Vacuets can take away only waste, not food.

Approved by doctors in hospital tests. After years of testing, doctors' records show these amazing results: Vacuets give relief for most people in 10 to 30 minutes. This means you can use Vacuets when you wake and expect gentle constipation relief before you go to work.

Send for your sample. Vacuets are not yet available at your druggist's. Send your name and address and 10¢ to Bristol-Myers Co., Box 77-O, Elizabeth, N. J. You'll receive 4 Vacuets suppositories in plain wrapper. Bristol-Myers guarantees fast, gentle constipation relief, or your money back! Try them!

*Some laxatives (bulk or moistening agents) are gentle, but they take up to 3 days to work.

Arthur Pew Dies in Paris; Ex-Georgia Football Star

Arthur Pew Jr., 61, Atlanta businessman and former star tackle for the University of Georgia football team, died Monday in the American Hospital at Paris, France.

Mr. Pew collapsed at the hotel in which he and his wife were staying. He died shortly after being admitted to the hospital.

He had suffered a heart attack last July in Atlanta, associates said.

Mr. Pew and his wife, the former Sara Smith of Barnesville, left Atlanta for Europe in mid-October.

He was president of the Peachtree Federal Savings & Loan Assn. and president and treasurer of the Arthur Pew Construction Company.

Born at Sugar Hill, near Auburn, Ala., he was reared in Atlanta.

Following his graduation from Peacock School in 1916 he entered the University of Georgia and played football for two years before joining the Second Division of the Marine Corps.

GEORGIA CAPTAIN

After seeing action in Europe during World War I, Mr. Pew returned to the University. He was captain of the football team in 1919, and was named to the All-Southern team in 1920.

State Civil Defense Switches Emphasis From Evacuation to Fallout Shelters

By MARION GAINES

Plans for mass evacuation of atom-bombed Georgia cities aren't being scrapped, but state Civil Defense leaders Tuesday indicated future emphasis will be placed on hiding rather than running.

"Every home should have a fallout shelter in any event," said Jack Grantham, state CD deputy director, "But only a handful have them now."

In the event a nuclear bomb were dropped on Lockheed Aircraft Corp., mass evacuation of Metropolitan Atlanta would be feasible only "if we have 3 to 4 hours' warning," he said.

"We could do a pretty good job then, since we have 29 highways leading out of Atlanta," he added.

Adj. Gen. George J. Hearn, state CD director, and Grantham briefed newsmen Tuesday on plans for a two-mile-long CD parade in downtown Atlanta Friday and for other activities Monday, which has been proclaimed as "National Civil Defense Day" in Georgia by Gov. Vandiver.

"Public apathy to civil defense is quite alarming at times," said Hearn. "They don't realize it's just like taking out an insurance policy."

Hearn said the state currently has 402 city and county CD organizations that are "in fairly good shape—they have something more than just plans on paper."

In an effort to spur interest in construction of fallout shelters, Grantham said tentative plans call for "prototype shelters" to be built in three Georgia cities.

"A mass shelter will be built in Atlanta," he said, "an underground, family-type shelter in Thomasville and an above-ground shelter at a site yet to be selected."

Asked to compare Georgia's CD program with other states, Hearn said the state "ranks high" in training and evacuation and "is the best in the nation, communications-wise."

About 10,000 mobile radio units could be mustered at any given time as the result of a newly started hookup with the State Patrol and local police departments, said Grantham.

"That Cedartown bank robbery was the first time we used it," he said.

In the central communications

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION, Wednesday, Dec. 2, 1959 7

room at the State CD's East Confederate avenue headquarters, direct radio contact can be made with 91 police departments; 800 State Patrol units; 2,100 "ham" operators; 1,200 forestry mobile units; 400 highway maintenance mobile units, and 200 Civil Air Patrol stations.

Hearn pointed out a big red fire truck which he said CD obtained for $60 from the Glyco naval base at Brunswick and which originally "cost the government $8,500."

A Defense Department report, prepared for the 1960 General Assembly, shows that Georgia CD organizations have spent $116,305.11 for surplus goods that cost the federal government $2,220,159.42.

Until about six weeks ago,

Grantham said, Atlanta was ineligible to apply for purchase of any surplus items for CD use because no ordinance had been passed by the Atlanta aldermanic board setting up a CD outfit.

With that hurdle now eliminated, Atlanta can join such localities as Cordele, which has bought some $176,615 worth of surplus equipment for only $4,232.

One of Georgia's most CD-conscious city fathers is a woman—Mayor Amilee C. Graves of Clarksville.

The Defense Department report shows Clarksville has pending a request for $49,125 in federal matching funds.

"Mayor Graves wants to build a shelter in the basement of city hall," said Grantham.

RHYME A DAY By OLLIE REEVES

"The strenuous shopping days ahead can be made more pleasant if low-heeled shoes and loose-fitting dresses are worn."—Advice column quote.

Soon all the stores will overflow . . . With shoppers (mostly ladies) . . . For neither hail nor sleet nor snow . . . Nor all the fires of Hades . . . No sudden rain, no wintry blast . . . Or storms succeed in stopping . . . A woman who decides, at last . . . To finish up her shopping.

Her eyes are glazed, she never smiles . . . But, with great animation . . . She fights her way through crowded aisles . . . With grim determination . . . Her hat has slanted to one side . . . Her shoulder straps are shifting . . . And she is drifting with the tide . . . Not knowing where she's drifting.

At last the shopping day is done . . . She's finished with her buying . . . At last the victory is won . . . And oh, how gratifying . . . It is to finish with the race . . . To pass the final hurdle . . . Kick off her shoes and wash her face . . . And loosen up her girdle.

Nagging Wife Can Push A Husband Into His Sins

QUESTION: I am 28 years of age and having trouble with my husband. He is starting to drink heavily, and this makes me furious, as my father was a drunkard. Tell me what to do.—M. R. H.

ANSWER: Doctors and experts on alcoholism now agree there is always a reason why men take to drink. Some because of boredom, some because of loneliness and some because of marital unhappiness, etc. I have a feeling that some drink, however, because they have never grown up.

While drunkenness is terrible there are other sins just as bad. I think a wife who constantly scolds a man about his sins can become a prime factor in making him more entrenched in them. This is a vicious circle which can destroy a marriage and a home. First, if

Mississippian Agrees to Serve On Rights Panel

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Mrs. Wallis Schutt, 46-year-old Jackson church woman, has bucked the Citizens' Councils and agreed to serve on the Civil Rights Commission Advisory Committee for Mississippi.

Mrs. Schutt, president of the United Church Women of Mississippi, said the post would give her "an opportunity to present the Mississippi views" on racial matters.

The commission asked her several weeks ago if she would serve and she advised she would accept an appointment if it is offered.

Her decision came 10 days after the Citizens' Councils charged those who would serve are traitors and integrationists, whether they have the courage to admit it.

Extra 10% Discount on Insurance for Compact Cars

Overall savings with Allstate run as high as $20...$30... or more!

Once again Allstate has found a way to further reduce the cost of top-quality auto insurance.

If your compact car is among those listed at the right (or among the 25 other makes on your Allstate Agent's list), you may be eligible for an extra 10% discount off on liability, medical payments, and collision insurance from Allstate. And remember, that's 10% off Allstate's already low rates. Depending on where you live and how your car is used, your total savings may amount to $30, or even more, compared to rates of most other companies.

Equally important—you get these savings on your family car with no sacrifice in protection whatsoever. You don't get a "stripped-down" policy. You get the protection of Allstate's famous Crusader Policy.

Why the discount? The reasons are quite simple. A careful study has convinced Allstate that the lower horsepower, smaller size, lower weight and greater maneuverability of these cars make them a lot less likely to run into trouble. This, Allstate feels, entitles compact-car drivers to an extra discount on auto insurance.

Naturally, the extra 10% will not apply if your compact car already qualifies for Allstate's 25% multiple car discount.

May we help you? You can talk to an Allstate Agent at Sears, at an Allstate Insurance Center, or phone and ask him to call at your home.

It will pay you to do so, in more ways than one.

"May we help you?"

YOU MAY QUALIFY IF YOUR CAR IS AMONG THESE

Corvair	Fiat
Falcon	Simca
Valiant	SAAB
Rambler-American	English Ford
Lark	Opel
Volkswagen	Willys Jeep
Renault	Austin
	Hillman-Minx

Your Allstate Agent will have a list of cars and models that meet Allstate's specifications for age, weight, size, power and price.

Girl, 17, Turns Thief To Pay for Trousseau

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Like any 17-year-old girl, Donna Jean Dresskell dreamed of a lavish wedding trousseau. But unlike others, police said, she planned to buy her's with burglaries.

The brown-haired, hazel-eyed high school junior was seized Monday night. Three retired policemen laid a trap for her in a home in her neighborhood. She overturned a metal pitcher and broke a glass in the dark bedroom.

"We didn't know at the time it was a girl," said one, "but it was a noisy burglar."

Miss Dresskell was jailed without bail in connection with three burglaries. Detectives William Jackson said $1,000 worth of jewelry was recovered from her home nearby, where she lives with her parents.

Jackson quoted the girl as saying she had wedding clothes on order for her impending marriage to a Miami soldier—not identified—who is stationed at Fort Jackson, S.C. Money from the burglaries was intended to pay for the layaway purchases.

After former New York policeman Norman Lieb's home was burglarized Nov. 2, he and two other retired New York policemen used an old burglar-catching stunt. They put out the lights in the home of one of them, James E. Cassidy, and sat down to wait. The girl, they said, was seized when she stumbled into the trap.

Steel Takes Its Case to Workers

WASHINGTON (AP)—The steel industry disclosed Tuesday it is contacting employees, seeking their support for a union-rejected settlement offer made by management on Nov. 15.

Industry negotiators said they expect to stand pat on the offer, a position the Steelworkers Union said means the employers are refusing to yield in government-sponsored bargaining sessions aimed at preventing a renewed steel strike.

AYES AND NAYS

R. Conrad Cooper, chief industry negotiator, said "It is just as much a part of collective bargaining to say 'no' to unreasonable demands as it is to say 'yes' to reasonable demands."

Government officials passed the word, meanwhile, that President Eisenhower is getting ready to blast both steel union and management for not settling their dispute.

The President is expected to do this in a radio-TV address to the nation Thursday night before starting on his overseas good will tour. But he may jump the gun at his news conference Wednesday.

Company-union talks, resuming here for 2½ hours, broke up on a sour note without any progress.

Director Joseph F. Finnegan of the Federal Mediation Service arranged to meet separately Wednesday morning with the industry and in the afternoon with the union.

MAILING CIRCULARS

The industry said it is mailing circulars to employees entitled "last offer for strike settlement," detailing its rejected Nov. 15 settlement offer. Printed in red and black, the flyer extols wage and benefit gains it says the offer would provide.

David J. McDonald, Steelworkers president, charged the circulars represent a "propaganda gimmick." He said they are designed to confuse workers and to get them to vote approval of the offer in a National Labor Relations Board poll of employees due to take place in mid-January.

Crash Kills 4

ALGIERS (UPI)—A French military transport crashed on landing at Boufarik Air Base Tuesday, killing four crewmen.

Tidal Wave Builds Up On Riviera

NICE, France (UPI)—The worst Mediterranean storm in years Tuesday drove ships aground and battered the Riviera coastline with flooding waves and landslides.

French weathermen warned a tidal wave might hit the coast. In Spain, two persons were killed by the storm, which had winds up to 80 miles an hour in the port of Alicante. Storm damage put the national television network off the air.

SHIP AGROUND

The British liner Braemar Castle, with 517 aboard, was blown aground near Gibraltar Monday night. Two British tugs refloated the 17,209-ton ship Tuesday at high tide. There were no reports of casualties.

Another ship, the 465-ton Portuguese trawler Nereida, had to be towed to shelter near Gibraltar after storm waves nearly forced its crew to abandon ship. The British tug Troncol was reported sunk in Gibraltar Bay with no loss of life.

FLOOD ROADS

In France, the winds reached 70 miles an hour, pushing waves over coastal barriers and flooding highways, railroads, and streets. Riviera vacationers were marooned in cafes and rooming houses in Nice when surging water cut them off.

She 'Masters' Sex, Walks 119 Miles Twice

LONDON (AP)—A 55-year-old woman doctor said Tuesday people can live to be 200 if they give up smoking, drinking, proteins, starch and sex.

The amazing Soviet-born Dr. Barbara Moore twice in seven days has foot-slogged a tough 110-mile course to prove her physical fitness.

"Life with mastered sex—that's really the vital key to the success of my two marathons," she said in an interview.

"Of course I can't completely ignore sex, but I've mastered it so that there are no abnormal urges."

Asked her view on having children, she replied:

"I could have a baby now, but I prefer to wait until I'm 100."

"My husband knows that I have the body of a woman of 32, the vigor, stamina and endurance of a man of 24."

Her husband is a sculptor, Harry Moore. He is 46.

Pupil Plan Voided At Newport News

U.S. Judge Orders Schools
To Try Again by March 15

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP)—A federal judge Tuesday rejected the Newport News pupil placement plan as "nothing short of contemptuous" and directed the school board to submit a new plan by March 15.

Judge Walter E. Hoffman told the Newport News school board and the state pupil placement board they will face contempt proceedings if they persist in denying qualified Negroes admission to white schools.

The plan rejected by Hoffman, consisting of one paragraph, said merely that all pupil assignments would be left up to the pupil placement board. Hoffman said the new plan he ordered must be based on the school board's acceptance of primary responsibility for assigning pupils.

EXACT PROCEDURES

Furthermore, he said, the new plan must show exactly what procedures are to be followed by the school board and school Supt. R. O. Nelson in considering pupils' applications.

Counsel for the Negroes had asked Hoffman to order the school board to submit a reasonable plan within 20 days. Action should be taken on the pupils' applications soon so they could be admitted to a white school for the February term, said W. Hale Thompson.

At the outset of the hearing Hoffman told the two boards: "You have a perfect right to defy the court, but the day you do it you know what ticket you will write."

HONEST EFFORT

The judge said the school board in neighboring Norfolk had made an honest effort to "grapple with the problem" by submitting a placement plan containing criteria and standards for admission of pupils. If the Newport News board does not want to set up such academic standards in considering applications of Negroes for white schools, the court will then consider only geographical boundaries, Hoffman said.

A handful of Negroes already Virginia community, Prince Edward County, has disbanded its public school system rather than integrate. White students there are attending private schools whereas most Negro children are receiving no formal education.

2 Bluff Way Into Office, Grab $90,000 in Diamonds

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Two men, one wearing a policeman's uniform, bluffed their way into a jeweler's private office and robbed him of an estimated $90,000 worth of diamonds late Tuesday.

Jeweler Manie Topper, 53, said he and his wife, Sophie, 49, were alone in their store on the 12th floor of a downtown office building when the two men entered.

'INVESTIGATING' THEFT

The man in police uniform told them he was investigating the theft of Topper's car six weeks ago, Topper said. Topper let the men into his private office.

Once inside, he said, the man in plainclothes pulled a revolver and the bandit in uniform began scooping up the gems.

Topper said the largest of the stolen diamonds was 7 1/4 carats and the rest were one or two carat stones. The amount of diamonds taken was not revealed.

BOUND TOPPERS

The bandits bound the Toppers, gagged them with tape, ran down 12 flights of stairs and disappeared into the throng of Christmas shoppers. Mrs. Topper, still tied to a chair, managed to wriggle to the door and signal for help.

U.S. Buyer Pays a Record $182,000 for 13th Century Rare Book

(Copyright 1959, The New York Times Co.)
LONDON — A world's record price for a bound manuscript sold at public auction was set Monday with the sale of a 13th century

Apocalypse for $182,000.

The buyer was H. P. Kraus, the New York book dealer and specialist in rare and antique manuscripts. By a wide margin, he broke the record he himself had set in December with the purchase of the 12th Century Helmarshausen Latin Gospels and Eusebian Canons for $109,200.

Kraus again was the man able and willing to outbid all others for the few items he really sought from the second part of the Dyson Perrins collection.

C. W. Dyson Perrins died in January, 1958, possessing the world's greatest private collection of rare books and manuscripts.

The sale of the first part took place Dec. 9, 1958.

Shippers, Dockers Seal Peace

NEW YORK (UPI) — East and Gulf Coast longshoremen and shippers reached a contract agreement Tuesday night, averting a possible resumption of a dock strike that had been halted by a Taft-Hartley injunction.

The agreement, which affects 70,000 dockers, was reached in a "Memo of Understanding" signed by the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA-CIO) and the New York Shipping Assn., representing 170 firms.

The pact calls for a 41-cent an hour boost in a three-year contract.

The major issue of the strike—automation—will be submitted to arbitration if 10 additional days of negotiating does not bear any fruit.

The union leaders must submit the proposal to the members for ratification. They expected the pact would be approved by Dec. 10.

The Taft-Hartley injunction was scheduled to expire Dec. 27, when it would have been legal for the union to resume the strike.

U.N. Makes Antarctica A 'Preserve'

(Copyright 1959, The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON—A region equal in area to Europe and the United States combined was made into a preserve for scientific research, immune from political and military strife Tuesday.

Twelve nations, including the United States and the Soviet Union, signed a treaty on Antarctica that would establish a free-wheeling inspection system markedly different from any hitherto attempted.

The treaty also revives the principle of unanimity, which was at the heart of the original U.N. concept. It fell into disrepute as "The Veto" during the cold war.

President Eisenhower in a statement said the treaty and its guarantees "constitute a significant advance toward the goal of a peaceful world with justice."

Tuesday's action by the 12 nations was unanimous. The treaty cannot become effective unless ratified by all of them. Likewise the decisions of the consultative committee that it creates must be unanimous.

Restrict Dumping, Committee Urges

By HERMAN HANCOCK

Private dumping will be barred at all city land fills in the future if recommendations of the aldermanic board's public works committee No. 2 are approved.

Alderman Jack Summers, committee chairman, said he will ask aldermen Monday to approve a new ordinance restricting dumping at the land fills to city sanitary department equipment. He asserted private dumping has grown to such proportions and land fills are becoming so scarce that the city cannot permit private dumping and continue to have space for yard debris.

BACKS GRAYDON

Summers' committee backed Stafford W. Graydon in urging enactment of the new ordinance. Any interested persons were invited to attend the hearing Tuesday but only a handful appeared.

Graydon has urged the action so his department can continue to collect yard debris in residential areas. He said if available dumps are filled by private dumping the city will find itself without sites on which to dispose of yard collections.

The committee also voted to ask aldermen to pass an ordinance to make future pay-as-you-enter sewer assessments payable on the sixth year or in lieu of payment a f.i.a. of record would be filed against the property.

The pay-as-you-enter program has been permitted when property owners had functioning septic tanks and in some instances where owners had sewer facilities on another line. Sewers are laid on an assessment basis with property owners paying the cost.

The committee also will permit property owners to pay the assessment one-fourth down and the remainder in three equal installments.

$50,000 IN BILLS

Ray Nixon, city construction chief, said the city probably has some $50,000 in pay-as-you-enter bills which are now six years old. City Attorney Jack Savage pointed out that any claim the city has for collection of such deferred bills would expire under the statute of limitations after seven years unless the agreement is renewed. This prompted the action.

Previously, there was no time on such deferred collections, but the Savage opinion makes it mandatory that the city protect itself, Summers said.

A revised plumbing code is nearly ready for the printers, Nixon reported, but the committee will hold a public hearing on it before clearing it for passage by aldermen. Date and time for the hearing will be announced later, Summers said.

Services are being held each night through Friday at 7:30. All ladies of the church are invited to participate in this special observance.

The association's annual essay award went to Thomas Strickland, 14, of Forsyth. The youth's essay topic was "Better Soil and Water Through Conservation Districts."

In his report Scott showered praise on state and federal agencies for their cooperation with the association during the past year. He also called for increasing emphasis on the development of small watersheds throughout Georgia.

The Georgia Association of Soil District Supervisors climaxed its 16th annual convention here Tuesday by electing Joe K. Hawkins of LaGrange as its new president.

A longtime Georgia leader in the soil and water conservation field, Hawkins is a member of the Pine Mountain District and is a past vice president of the supervisors association.

Stepping down as president was Tom G. Scott Jr. of Forsyth, whose annual president's report was one of Tuesday's convention highlights.

Dog Is Hunted After Biting Boy On Oakview Rd.

Search for a dog which bit a 10-year-old boy on the right arm Monday afternoon was in progress Tuesday.

Mrs. Minna Fincher, of 2432 Boulevard Dr., NE, mother of the boy, Richard Leach, said her son was treated at Grady Hospital and will have to take rabies shots if the animal is not found.

The dog was described as medium size, brownish-black and shaggy. The boy was bitten on Oakview rd., between Kirkwood ave. and Boulevard dr. Mrs. Fincher said the bite was deep and wide, between the elbow and shoulder.

Record $4 Million Voted For Baptist Missions

By BETSY LOCHRIDGE

A record budget of $4,138,000 for mission work by Southern Baptists in the United States, Cuba and Panama was adopted by the Home Mission Board at its annual meeting here Tuesday.

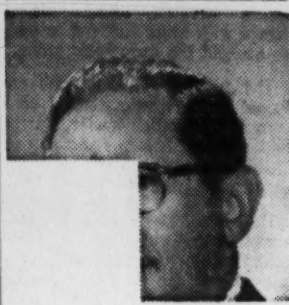

This exceeds the 1959 budget by more than $300,000, said Courts Redford, executive secretary.

Also at Tuesday's meeting, 10 Atlanta Baptist ministers and laymen were awarded citations of appreciation.

They were the Rev. Julian Pipkin, secretary of the Sunday School department, Georgia Baptist Convention; the Rev. W. T. Booth, Brookhaven Baptist Church; the Rev. L. E. Smith, Park Street Baptist Church; the Rev. O. M. Seigler, retired minister of First Baptist Church, Douglasville, who has served the board eight years; and the Rev. D. H. Hall Jr., First Baptist Church, Decatur, who has served the board for 16 years.

Laymen honored at Tuesday's meeting include Raymond A. Anderson, Mrs. Clinton Whetstone, Mrs. Carlton Binns, Mrs. Ralph B. Smith and Walter R. Thomas.

Dr. C. E. Autrey, professor of evangelism at Southwestern Baptist Seminary, Ft. Worth, was elected director of the division of evangelism of the Home Mission Board to succeed Leonard Sanderson, who resigned last month to take a Louisiana pastorate.

ter, Pa., who had just stopped at a plant adjacent to the airport. The pilot circled away, as if planning another approach, and headed straight toward Bald Eagle Mountain, Schadt said.

"I heard the pilot gun his motors," Schadt continued. "A second or two later there was a gigantic crash."

The plane rammed the mountain about midway. It cut a wide swath through the snow-covered, tree-studded slopes. The fuselage was shredded. Then fire broke out. But, oddly, the tail section was virtually undamaged.

2 ALIVE BUT DIED

Two other passengers — Fred Gettys of New Cumberland, Pa., and William T. Derry, Pottstown, Pa. — were alive when rescuers reached the scene in this central Pennsylvania community some 90 miles north of the state capital at Harrisburg.

But both died before they could be brought down the mountain.

Two doctors, W. W. Wilcox of Montoursville, and Earl Miller of Williamsport, were lowered by winch and wire ladder to the scene by an Air Force helicopter crew. A Catholic priest, the Rev. Francis P. Corcoran, also arrived this way. Meantime, a rescue party was inching its way up to the wreck and scores of red-jacketed hunters — out for deer — came to offer help.

SHOUTS 'THANK GOD'

"Thank God, Father, you're here," Matarazzo, father of four, shouted when he saw Father Corcoran.

Matarazzo then swept his arm over the scene and said: "I'm not afraid to die. I'm not afraid to face God, but just look at those other poor people."

Allegheny had carried passengers since 1949 without a fatality. It received national safety awards the last two years. This was the 11th crash involving U.S. commercial airliners this year, and the death toll of 24 raised the total in such accidents to 310 in 1959.

It was not clear who was at the controls, but Allegheny said the senior pilot aboard was Capt. Thomas R. Goldsmith, 30, of North Olmstead, Ohio, and the co-pilot was George Matthew Bowser, 32, of Parma, Ohio.

Court Calls Hearing on Pupil Plan issued a statement in which Vandiver said he had not read the plan but that he was sure it would be "dealt with properly" when submitted to the General Assembly.

At his news conference Tuesday, the governor simply read a prepared statement and refused flatly to discuss the matter further. He declined also to elaborate on his brief statement of Monday.

In his statement Tuesday, Vandiver said:

"The people of Georgia overwhelmingly elected me governor on a platform which, among other things, made my views upon school segregation well known.

The Rev. Mr. King led the Negro boycott of city buses in Montgomery which brought about their integration. He said he plans to be co-pastor with his father of a Negro Baptist church in Atlanta.

clear and unmistakable. "Those views have not changed."

During the 1958 campaign which resulted in Vandiver's gubernatorial election, he vowed that no Negro children would attend school with white children so long as he held the governor's office.

The governor Tuesday also released a prepared statement concerning integration leader Martin Luther King Jr., who announced Monday he plans to set up headquarters in Atlanta.

The Rev. Mr. King led the Negro boycott of city buses in Montgomery which brought about their integration. He said he plans to be co-pastor with his father of a Negro Baptist church in Atlanta.

"Wherever M. L. King Jr. has been there has followed in his wake a wave of crimes including: stabbing, bombings, inciting of riots, barratry, destruction of property and many others," Vandiver said. "For these reasons, he is not welcome in Georgia."

"We will be watching him closely and if he is responsible for strife involving law violations, he will be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law."

Sen. Talmadge predicted Tuesday the Georgia Legislature will stand firm against any attempt to integrate the state's public schools. Talmadge made the comment here in answer to a reporter's questions concerning the Atlanta school board proposal for a pupil placement plan.

Sen. Talmadge spoke to the Atlanta Kiwanis Club — outlining various legislative acts he had introduced into the Senate to "bring the government back to the local level."

He explained his bill which would require at least five years of judicial experience for Supreme Court appointees. "The President can appoint someone under 21, a doctor, a farmer, or whomever he wants to the Supreme Court," Georgia's junior senator said.

"Here of late presidents have appointed men to the court for what they would do — not for terest charges on our national debt but we do not reduce the principal.

"We carry on massive federal programs which state and local governments could do better.

"We devote large amounts of money to farm price supports to reduce surpluses, with the opposite results.

"We lend money to benefit special groups at rates below those which the government must pay to its own creditors, when private sources could do the job.

"We perpetuate federal programs which have long since met the objectives for which they were created."

Stans said that often a congressman's only indication of public opinion on an issue came when "organized pressure groups travel to the nation's capital to urge spending for their favorite causes."

Some increases, he said, are built into past legislation so that even without any new spending bills the increase for 1961 alone would be between $2,000,000,000 and $2,500,000,000. He added that "there are practically no built-in decreases, because government programs are almost invulnerable to reduction or elimination."

He reminded his listeners that in his budget message last year President Eisenhower had called for downward revision of spending in 18 specific programs. He commented: "Only three received attention by Congress, and that with the net result of increasing future expenditures rather than decreasing them."

His total of foreseeable government commitments included $98,000,000,000 of such items as highways, housing, other public works and shipping subsidies; $350,000,000,000 for pensions and compensation, and 290 billions of current public debt.

A delicate bit of cooperation by the defenders was combined with a neat unblocking maneuver by East in today's hand to sink a three no trump contract that the forces of nature had virtually wrapped up and sealed for delivery.

West opened the jack of spades and East saw at once that the suit was blocked for the defense. True enough, if West had led from a seven card holding the suit could be established by the play of the ace and queen, but East considered it more likely that declarer held at least Kxx, in which case South would duck the second lead of that suit, forever eliminating spades as a contending force. South must be induced to take his king of spades at once; so East played the queen of spades, hoping to be able to discard the ace as the diamonds were played. It is true that South could have foiled this diabolical defense scheme by refusing the trick, but to do so would be an admission that he had seen an adversary's hand.

Upon taking the spade, declarer saw that there was nothing to it but to drive out the ace of diamonds and pray that the adverse spades were divided four in each hand.

West refused the king of diamonds as partner had hoped he would, but took the second lead. East's moment had arrived, and he triumphantly disposed of the ace of spades, permitting West to run five tricks in the suit and chalk up a two trick set.

Met's Giorgio Tozzi To Sing at Emory Sunday

Giorgio Tozzi, Chicago-born bass-baritone of the Metropolitan and San Francisco Opera companies, will sing in recital at Emory University Sunday.

The concert, one in the university's chamber music series, is scheduled for 3 p.m. in Glenn Memorial Auditorium.

Arias from Verdi operas, a group of songs based on T. S. Eliot poems, "Vier Erneste Gensange" by Brahms and works by Marcello, Scarlatti and Cimarosa will be included. Max Walmer will be piano accompanist.

Tozzi appeared in Atlanta with the Met in 1958, singing the roles of Prince Gremin in "Eugene Onegin" and Ramfis in "Aida."

Emory's chamber music series is sponsored for faculty and students by an anonymous donor. Some tickets are available to the public.

MELBOURNE, Australia (Times of London Dispatch) — Erskine Caldwell's best-selling novel, "God's Little Acre," has been ruled obscene by a magistrate's court.

The court ordered four copies to be destroyed. Ivor Charles Hammet, the Australian Customs Department's inspector of publications, said the book was banned when first released here in 1933 but was released to the public last year.

He said the Lockheed subcontract will be returned to the prime contractor for the B70 program, North American Aviation, which is to continue development work on the heavy bomber at its Englewood, Calif., plant.

Another effect of the Air Force cutback will be to delay the first flight of the B70 from 1962 to 1963. Tuesday's stretchout move is expected to shave $85 million from the defense budget to be submitted to Congress next month. The new budget will ask for about $75 million for the B70 instead of the $160 million originally planned.

U.S. Begins Anti-Trust Ship Probe

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The government has launched an investigation into possible violations of the federal anti-trust laws by the shipping industry, the Justice department said Tuesday night.

The department said it has instructed its lawyers to present evidence involving certain practices of the ocean steamship industry to a federal grand jury in the District of Columbia.

Other sources said a grand jury in San Francisco also is considering possible charges against major U.S. shipping lines.

The action stemmed from a New York investigation last month of the steamship industry being conducted by the House Judiciary Committee's antitrust subcommittee.

"The car started off and I heard the truck start too," he was quoted. "They drove around for an hour and a half and then pulled into a driveway or on a side road and began unloading my truck. I could hear children laughing and playing."

Police said they believed the whisky and wine was reloaded onto another truck. The gunmen unlocked the trunk briefly to take about $35 from Beavers and drove off again.

He was released approximately an hour and a half later, he said. He quoted the driver: "You'll find your truck parked down this dirt road." Beavers said he located the truck and drove on to Loganville.

GBI Arrests 3 In Gambling Raids

By JACK NELSON

Three men were arrested on gaming charges Tuesday as GBI agents raided two south Georgia roadside tourist spots.

The raids were ordered by Col. William P. Trotter, director of the Department of Public Safety, on reports that tourists had been "fleeced" at the Nut Hut in Colquitt, Miller County, and at the Nut Hut in Bluffton, Clay County, 35 miles north of Colquitt. Both places are on U.S. 27.

The Georgia Bureau of Investigation reported it arrested Roger A. DuFour, 44; Semour Robert Kleine, 31, and Harold William Denike, 35, and seized gambling equipment in the Colquitt raid. No arrests were made and no gambling equipment seized at the Bluffton Nut Hut.

The Colquitt Nut Hut property is owned by Miller County City Court Judge J. A. Drake, and the Bluffton place is owned by Clay County Commissioner Ben Cooper.

Drake and Cooper told The Atlanta Constitution they leased the property this year to a man they know as "Red" McKinney of Tampa, Fla.

The judge and the commissioner said they knew of no gambling at the two places. Judge Drake added, however, that he had heard rumors of gambling at the Colquitt Nut Hut.

McKinney reportedly lives in a trailer at Bluffton.

The GBI reported that the three arrested men disclaimed any interest whatever in the Nut Hut and refused to give information on their personal background.

The GBI said it learned from records the men possessed that DuFour had lived in Ludowici, that Denike was from Tampa and that Kleine had lived a short while in Colquitt but was a native of Brooklyn, N.Y.

Lt. W. T. Beauchamp of Americus, who led the Colquitt raid, said DuFour and Kleine were playing cards at a table when he and Sergeant J. W. Southwell and M. F. Hale entered the Nut Hut. He said $9 was between them on the table.

Denike was sitting at another table, Lt. Beauchamp said. The GBI seized a marble game and a dice game, Lt. Beauchamp said.

The Nut Hut trio was charged with operating a gaming house, gaming and possessing gaming equipment.

Miller County Sheriff Felix Tabb said the men were jailed pending a preliminary hearing before Superior Court Judge W. I. Geer in Colquitt Wednesday.

The GBI said it would ask Sol. Gen. Joe Ray to present a petition to padlock the Colquitt Nut Hut.

Judge Drake said he had always known his property by the name "Tip Top" and had "never known but a mighty little about" Red McKinney. The judge said he had not been around the place since leasing it and didn't know that there was any gambling there.

"I did hear rumors, but that's all," Judge Drake said.

Cooper said that he ran a garage "not far from" the Bluffton Nut Hut, but that he had enough to keep him busy at the garage and had not visited the Nut Hut but twice since leasing it.

The Clay commissioner said he understood the GBI visited the place Tuesday and found no gambling and nothing wrong.

NBC Orders Employees' Payola Oath

NEW YORK (AP)—NBC is requiring all its employees who select music on the 11 NBC-owned radio and television stations throughout the country to make sworn answers to a personal questionnaire. The move is an outgrowth of the congressional payola investigation.

An NBC spokesman said Tuesday night the questionnaires were distributed last week and that the answers, sworn to before a notary public, were to be returned to NBC headquarters here. There was no disclosure, however, of the replies.

The spokesman said the questionnaires, inquiring into any interest the employee might have in music publishing or record manufacturing or distribution, went mostly to disc jockeys and others concerned with the selection of music played over the six radio and five television stations owned by NBC.

The questionnaire was described by NBC as a part of a survey, under way for almost a year, looking into all aspects of its operations and practices.

Trouble With Downtown

Is Rapid Transit Traffic Solution?

else that downtown does or plans to do will pay off if people can't come in and go with ease. "A new downtown is worthless if you don't have proper ingress and egress," Richard Rich, president of Rich's, says.

Automobiles are the cause of all the trouble. Unfortunately for cities, the automobile, almost everybody agrees, is the fastest, most comfortable, most convenient form of transportation. Perhaps that needs to be qualified. It isn't the fastest when 50,000 of them are trying to reach downtown at approximately the same time.

As population grows in the metropolitan area, more and more people begin to argue that a new (for Atlanta) form of transportation is necessary.

Speaking at a breakfast for planners here recently Lloyd F. Howard, a transportation specialist for General Electric, said, "By 1970 the population of this area will increase 37 per cent. The transportation demands on the downtown area will increase 110 per cent." Howard went on to say that if autos only were used for transportation, the city would need three times as much space for parking garages as for all other buildings combined. For each 20-story office building downtown, there would have to be a 60-story garage!

Even now, with a transit system that moves an estimated (by Transit's Robert Somerville) 100,000 people each workday, in 450 vehicles, downtown Atlanta's streets leading to expressways and boulevards are clogged critically by some 30,000 autos each day at rush hour.

Joseph Ross, president of Davison's, says, "Mass transportation cannot be forgotten in any consideration of the downtown problem." Transportation is THE downtown problem. It is apparent that growth will soon rule out the auto as the principal vehicle of transportation.

URGES SOLUTION

"In terms of really bringing people downtown," Ross says, "a dramatic, imaginative solution is needed; one that would make taking your car unattractive."

Rapid transit is the answer other big cities have found. Earlier this month, the Metropolitan Planning Commission passed a resolution calling for the inclusion of rapid transit in a forthcoming study of transportation by the State Highway Department.

One thing is known about rapid transit without any further study. It will be enormously expensive. Somerville estimates that a monorail system would cost $2,000,000 a mile just for the track alone. A surface system would cost $5,000,000 a mile. A subway would cost $20,000,000 a mile.

PUBLIC CAPITAL

"Private enterprise couldn't afford to do it," Somerville says. He believes the best workable system would be for the public to put up the capital. Then a private concern could afford to operate the system.

A lot of people today think the public has as much interest in seeing a rapid transit system working as it has in highways and streets, which are paid for by everybody. (The idea that the public will gain in the long run if downtown's transportation troubles are solved has even prompted the suggestion that the city buy the transit company and provide free rides to all who want.)

Somerville doesn't believe Atlanta needs rapid transit today. "A city of one million doesn't need it," he says. "A city of two million does." Atlanta is not far from being a city of two million. "We will need rapid transit in 15 or 20 years," Somerville says. "And that's why we need to start planning now."

It takes a certain density of population before rapid transit is possible. In many cities suburban densities have elevated rapidly because the city grew in only one or two directions. Big cities on big bodies of water were forced to grow that way. Not Atlanta. Its growth has been circular and uniform.

That, by the way, is one reason that Atlanta's downtown stands a better chance than most of remaining the vital center of things, according to one view. Others say that in the very reason why Atlanta is in danger of losing its urban characteristics.

One philosophy that is being subscribed to by a great many city planners these days concerns automobiles in another way. Cars are fine on the highways leading into town, the idea goes, but they don't belong in downtown.

It has been argued that keeping cars out of downtown is just as sensible as keeping pedestrians off expressways. People on foot and autos just don't together, it the argument.

In Atlanta, autos are being restricted bit by bit. "No parking" areas spread; exclusive bus lanes are being tried. Several years ago the Metropolitan Planning Commission suggested that all of downtown be reserved exclusively for transit buses and pedestrians. All over the county, cities are studying a new idea in downtowns: closed-to-traffic shoppers' malls.

Tomorrow: On the Mall.

Rail Merger Creates Biggest Coal-Haul Line

ROANOKE, Va. (UPI)—The Norfolk and Western Railway Tuesday became the nation's largest coal-hauling railroad by merging with the Virginian Railway—a line built by an irate tycoon with $50 million from his own pocket.

The merger, the first by two major independent railroads in modern years, went off smoothly over the combined 2,747-mile system extending from Cincinnati, Ohio, through the rich coal fields of West Virginia and Virginia to Norfolk, Va.

Papers filed with the Virginia Corporation Commission made the merger a legal reality at 12:01 a.m. (EST). Trains began traveling interchangeably over the tracks of the former competitors.

A Lucky Peach Sighs in Chicago

By WARREN BOSWORTH
Constitution Staff Writer

CHICAGO—Bonny Gay Lay of Shellman, Ga., considers herself about the luckiest lass in the Windy City this week.

Monday she was named winner of the National Home Improvement Contest at the 38th 4-H Club Congress and received a $400 college scholarship to go along with it.

But Thursday she has another big thrill coming up.

She'll have a seat right beside singer and movie star Pat Boone at the annual General Motors luncheon at the Palmer House.

Bonny's already sighing, "I can hardly wait until noon Thursday."

For other 4-H delegates Tuesday was another day crammed and jammed with activities which kept the youngsters on the go all day and late into the evening hours.

More honors were heaped on Georgia's blue-ribbon delegates Tuesday as Billy Loflin of Augusta was named winner of the National Forestry Award.

The young Richmond county's award pushed the state's total national winnings to six so far at the 38th annual Congress in session here, this week.

Five Georgians won national awards in presentations Monday.

EXPENSE-PAID TRIP
For winning the coveted award, Billy received an expense-paid trip to the 1959 Congress from the American Forest Products Industries Inc., donors of the awards of the 4-H National Forestry Program.

Billy previously had won first-place honors in district and state forestry contests in Georgia before coming to Chicago. He has been a member of the 4-H club for the past seven years and his club activities last year won him the Northeast Georgia District Leadership Award.

In addition to his forestry program, Billy raised 120 acres of crops and garden, cared for 45 acres of orchard and raised livestock and poultry during the year. He says his plans for 1960 are even more ambitious.

The Peach State delegation along with 4-H members from every state in the Union and 17 foreign countries attended the annual 4-H dress revue Tuesday morning at the Eighth Street Theater.

BOYS TOWN MUSEUM
Following the dress revue the boys were guests of the National Livestock Producers Assn. at a luncheon and then were taken on a tour of Chicago's museum of Natural History.

The girls were guests of Montgomery Ward Co. at the swank South Shore Country Club. After the luncheon date the girls also toured the Museum of Natural History.

Tuesday night the boys and girls capped the whirlwind day with a dance at the famed Aragon Ballroom in downtown Chicago.

Loan League Swears In W.O. DuVall

W. O. DuVall was installed here as president of the United States Savings and Loan League Tuesday night.

More than 1,000 persons packed the Baltimore Hotel's exhibition hall for a candlelight dinner at which DuVall received a gavel, emblematic of the league presidency, from C. R. Mitchell of Kansas City, retiring president.

As league president, DuVall will serve as the top national spokesman for the savings and loan business in 1960. The league is the national trade organization for the $63 billion savings and loan business, and its membership is comprised of 4,600 savings associations throughout the nation.

Atlanta attorney G. Maynard Smith was toastmaster.

Principal speaker was Sen. Talmadge, who was introduced by Gov. Vandiver. Other principals sharing the program included Lee Evans, president of the Atlanta Board of Aldermen; James H. Aldridge, chairman of the Fulton County commission; Jack Agair, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, and Norman Strunk of Chicago, executive vice president of the League.

DuVall is president of the Atlanta Federal Savings and Loan Association.

Methodists Get Land For Home

South Georgia Methodists took the first step Tuesday toward a home for the aging when Bishop Arthur J. Moore accepted the deed to a 392-acre tract of Sumter County land.

Ceremonies were held at the Kate Witte property, bequeathed by Mrs. Witte as a home for aged persons. It has been known as the Rock of Ages Home.

The South Georgia Methodist Conference will decide at its annual meeting next June whether a home will be erected on the property.

Ledford's attorneys said they will appeal the case to the Georgia Supreme Court. Ledford was convicted and sentenced in May for the 1958 pistol slaying of Virgil Glenn Gray.

40&8 Post Hits Back at McKneally

Fulton County Voiture 217, 40 & 8 Honor Society, Tuesday night took issue on segregation with Martin B. McKneally, national commander of the American Legion.

As McKneally at Tifton called on Legionnaires to fulfill their responsibility to humanity, the Fulton group passed unanimously its disapproval of and disappointment in the release to the Atlanta newspapers by James E. Powers, national executive committeeman, Department of Georgia, as to his approval and backing of McKneally's stand on the removal of the word "white" from the 40 & 8's constitution.

In a statement signed by C. Roy Gunter, chief de gare; C. L. Merritt Jr., chemist; A. E. Luke and C. M. Herndon, the Voiture said:

"It is our belief that the rank and file of the Legionnaires and 40 & 8 members of Georgia do not agree with this stand. We have pledged our support to the national organization of the 40 & 8 in withstanding this attack on our constitution."

McKneally, during his Tifton speech, did not comment on his decision to seek to remove a segregation barrier from the 40 & 8, the Legion's fun-making auxiliary.

Neither did Powers of Macon, who earlier had endorsed McKneally's proposal.

McKneally attacked persons who "hide behind the Fifth Amendment" and urged Legion members to go all-out in efforts to instill moral principles in American youth. He also said the Legion members "must guard closely the cause of freedom."

Fred Green, Tift Legion commander, presided at the meeting.

Get a Golden Tan The Very First Time You Use MAN-TAN—or Pay Nothing!

- ✓ Safe on All Skins—Even Around the Eyes, Even on Tender Skin!
- ✓ Not a Dye, Stain, or Paint—Contains No Iodine!
- ✓ Not a Face Make-Up—Won't Stain Clothes!
- ✓ Won't Come Off After Ordinary Washing or Showering!

USE NEW CRYSTAL-CLEAR AFTER-SHAVE—KEEP YOUR RUGGED OUTDOOR LOOK WINTER AND SUMMER!

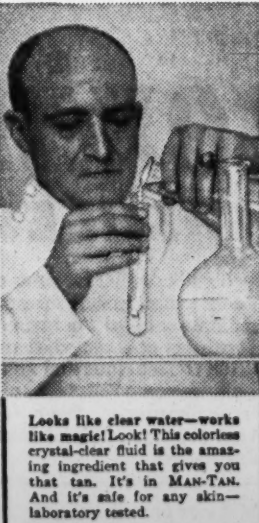

Do you look better, healthier, younger with a tan? Then have one all year around! Now you can get a sun-tanned look in the privacy of your own bathroom...without sunlamps or makeup. How? With an amazing new kind of After-Shave Lotion, called MAN-TAN!

MAN-TAN is not a dye, stain, paint or face makeup and does not contain iodine. It's not greasy or oily. It won't rub off. It won't wash or shower off with ordinary usage. It looks like a natural sun-tan; wears off like a natural sun-tan; but you need no sun to keep it tan fresh and glowing.

That's because MAN-TAN contains a revolutionary new skin-tanning discovery (Protosol) which starts its work the instant it comes in contact with the skin. The closest thing to magic, Protosol is the result of discoveries made by a leading biochemist.

The MAN-TAN formula has been laboratory tested, pronounced safe and effective on all types of skin, on face or body. It works as well on fair-skinned red-heads who never were able to sun-tan—who can't even go in the sun—as it does for brun-

Looks like clear water—works like magic! Look! This colorless crystal-clear fluid is the amazing ingredient that gives you that tan. It's in MAN-TAN. And it's safe for any skin—laboratory tested.

WON'T BURN, BLISTER OR FRECKLE, LIKE THE SUN!

Won't cause your skin to peel, dry out, wrinkle or turn leathery, either. MAN-TAN gives a smooth, even, glowing tan without any risks whatever.

If you have a suntan, enhance and preserve it with MAN-TAN! Use MAN-TAN regularly to keep your tan fresh and glowing. You'll look like a rugged outdoor sportsman all year around. You'll like the bracing "feel" of MAN-TAN, after shaving, too, and its fresh brisk aroma.

MEN! WOMEN TOO! DARK OR LIGHT TAN!

You can get a golden tan look with MAN-TAN, a bronze tan... or you can look as tan or dark as you wish—depending on how many times you apply MAN-TAN, the first day you use it. The more applications, the darker the tan. After that, use it once a day, or less, to keep your tan fresh and glowing. Your MAN-TAN golden, bronze or dark tan will fade like a real sun-tan, but it's easier to renew it—you just use MAN-TAN.

GUARANTEE
MAN-TAN is guaranteed to give you a smooth, even, glowing tan appearance wherever you use it on your body—as dark or golden as you wish—without irritating, burning, blistering or drying out your skin...without causing it to peel, flake, freckle, wrinkle, or turn leathery...without staining your clothes...it will not come off with ordinary washing or showering—or return unused contents and your full purchase price will be refunded at once, with no questions asked.

As I See It

Even Georgian Can't Save This Quiz

By PAUL JONES

I know we should root for the old home team and all of that rot but I can't bring myself to look at the price Is Right again even though a Decatur man is going to be a contestant Wednesday night.

James Priest, the Decaturite, was on the show last week and he won prizes valued (by the show producer) at $14,302. This, of course, entitled him to another shot at the big loot this week.

Priest is a construction worker and probably the only man ever to appear on the show who wasn't a white-collar man. He has won for his wife a mink coat, a collection of 12 dresses, a new car, a trip to Paris (for eight people) and $1,000 in cash.

I certainly hope his luck holds out again Wednesday night and I would like to be in there pulling for him. But I just can't bear to watch this revolting spectacle again.

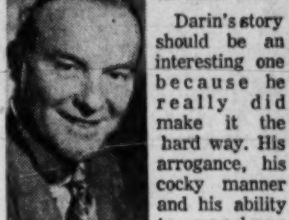

ANOTHER maudlin exhibition which I expect to skip is the Ralph Edwards This Is Your Life show which comes on after The Price Is Right.

Edwards is going to trap Bobby Darin, the young singing sensation, in his goldfish bowl where Darin will be surrounded by some people who knew him when his life was filled with strife, which, of course, was before "Mack the Knife."

I can remember when Edwards caught the stars on their way up and helped to put their names in bright lights. Remember how he assisted Roberta Sherwood in her climb?

Now, it seems, Edwards is catching them after they have already achieved some degree of prominence on their own.

Darin's story should be an interesting one because he really did make it the hard way. His arrogance, his cocky manner and his ability to produce and sing a song have been factors in his climb.

I'm surprised that Darin didn't have enough intestinal fortitude to tell Edwards to mind his own business.

I would have.

PERRY COMO has joined the long list of stars who prefer to tape their shows rather than to do them live.

Apparently the hurly-burly of doing a live show each week got the best of Mr. C. who, up to now, has looked like a walking testimonial for tranquilizers.

This leaves Ed Sullivan and Dinah Shore, among the big stars, who still do their musical variety shows live.

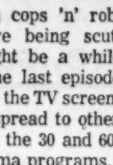

Ho hum.

FOR WHAT IT'S WORTH—Hedda Hopper is going to do a special for TV in which she will utilize the talents of such old-timers as Gary Cooper, Lucille Ball, Ramon Navarro, Francis X. Bushman and newcomer Charlton Heston. Miss Hopper will tell about her 30 years in the picture business.

As a sequel TV ought to get Louella Parsons to spin some old stories about her key-hole peeping career. Jerry Lewis will star in another special May 20. I can't wait. Joan Crawford will appear in her first television Western when she stars in the Zane Grey Theater Thursday night.

These Hollywood stars just can't resist the fat paychecks TV has to offer. The ratings virus has infected two of the most sickly shows in television. Five Fingers and The Lineup, both cops 'n' robbers dramas, are being scuttled. It might be a while before you see the last episode of each flicker on the TV screen. The virus might spread to other shows, principally the 30 and 60-minute crime drama programs.

Hedda Hopper.

PERRY PRESENTS—This is the way the Perry Como show will wind up Wednesday night. The affair was taped weeks ago, with Joe Bushkin, Dolores Grey, Como and Andy Griffith taking most of the bows. This scene at rehearsal is the finale. You will notice that Perry is wearing a sweater and Andy isn't wearing a tie. They dressed for the real take.

Sid Caesar Pokes Fun At Love and Marriage

By THE TV SCOUT

BEST BET—Under the cloak of sophisticated comedy, Sid Caesar dishes out some choice slapstick as he takes over the U. S. Steel Hour Wednesday for what purports to be a look at the institution of marriage. Sid calls this hour "Marriage... Handle With Care," but the title and topic are incidental.

This boils down to three sketches, all three out of Caesar's top drawer. The first compares the way wives treat husbands, with Marge and Gower Champion as an 1890 couple, then Sid and Audrey Meadows as a 1959 marital unit.

It makes some acid comments about today's pampered wives, modern living (Sid gets belabored by tables popping out of walls) and frozen foods. Then there's a skit with Jose Ferrer as the MC of a TV show which marries couples on the air, with Sid a most reluctant bridegroom and Audrey his eager bride. Slapstick rides again here, with a payoff gag that is very funny. Finally there's an opera spoof, this time using "Faust" loosely as the source. Ferrer is Mephistopheles, Caesar is Faust and everybody else participates. In between the skits there'll be a song from Connie Francis and a dance number by The Champions. This is one of Sid Caesar's finest efforts in a long while. 10-11 (Ch. 5).

Sid Caesar

7:30-8:30 (Ch. 2)—They've moved the basic plot of "Golden Boy" out West and they're calling it "The Danny Benedict Story" on Wagon Train Wednesday.

And it turns out to be another good attempt to be different from this fine series. Brandon DeWilde plays the kid, torn between wanting to be a violinist and his father's desire for him to become an Army man. He fiddles around until an impassioned speech by Ward Bond helps him decide which way to go. DeWilde, who plays the violin himself, doesn't play well enough for this script; so another youth was substituted for the close-up fiddling scenes.

There was a small romance while this was being filmed; Brandon and Melinda Plowman, who plays the violin-scraper, hit it off well, and every day she'd drive him home. They have a date later in the year, when he'll escort her to the L. A. State College prom.

9-10 (Ch. 2)—It's a grand night for singing on The Perry Como Show Wednesday. Taped some weeks ago, this one has Dolores Gray (perhaps the best girl singer on the musical stage) joining in for some rousers. Andy Griffith, Dolores' co-star in Broadway's "Destiny Rides Again," helps out with some nasal maneuvers, including a song or two and a monologue on the fine art of girl-watching. And Joel Bushkin is around for a few jazzy piano choruses. Chief item here is a medley at the end, with all of them doing Broadway songs they wished they had sung originally.

9-10 (Ch. 11)—The victim on Hawaiian Eye Wednesday night is a big tycoon who comes to the islands to get bigger and winds up in a drainage ditch. Everybody on the premises is a suspect, including his drunken press agent, his ambitious aide, his two-timing mistress, the press agent's hardy wife. After we've suspected them all for a sufficient length of time to get the 60 minutes in, we'll find the killer was, of course, the only one we hadn't yet suspected. Lots of stock shots of Honolulu here to spice up the action. And good acting from Harry Jackson as the press agent, plus a sexy bit by Carol Ohmart as the mistress.

10 (Ch. 11)—The first of two championship fights this week will be seen on Wednesday Night Fights Wednesday. (Friday will see the Gene Fullmer-Spider Webb middleweight go.) This one, from Houston, Tex., brings together aging lightweight champ Joe Brown against challenger Dave Charnley, an English southpaw. This will be Charnley's first bout here, but advance scouting reports indicate he's a good boy, and the experts give him a fair chance.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION, Wednesday, Dec. 2, 1959 19

Williams Testifies At Jim Jones Trial

By RICHARD ASHWORTH

Former State Revenue Commissioner T. V. Williams, who himself is under indictment in Fulton County, was the first state witness called Tuesday in the trial of former revenue department aide Jim E. Jones.

Jones, former director of the motor fuel tax refund unit, is charged with obtaining thousands of dollars in state funds by having refund checks issued to nonexistent firms.

TRIED ON 6 COUNTS

He is being tried on a six-count indictment which carries a penalty of two to seven years on each count upon conviction.

Williams, who faces trial here on a charge of conspiring to defraud the state by using state employees to do personal work for him, testified he approved motor fuel tax refund requisitions submitted by Jones on the basis of Jones' approval.

Williams was accompanied at the Fulton Superior Court trial by his attorney, William Hall.

Assistant Sol. Gen. Carl E. Copeland told the jury at the outset of the case Tuesday that the state expected to prove Jones authorized refunds on six occasions — totalling about $17,000 — to the "Morgan Transfer and Storage Co." which had never paid motor fuel taxes to the state.

Jones had the checks deposited to the fictitious firm's account, then transferred them to his personal bank account, Copeland added.

Although the state now is trying Jones on charges concerning the alleged Morgan firm, the defense also mentioned in the presence of the jury charges mentioned in another indictment of Jones — this one involving checks to the James M. Clark Lines, another allegedly nonexistent firm.

DOCUMENT OFFERED

Defense Attorney Elmo Holt offered a document which he said was certification from the State of Tennessee that such a firm had paid motor fuel taxes in Tennessee.

Trial of the case got under way following selection of the jury and after Judge Luther Alverson, the trial judge, overruled defense attacks on the indictment.

Williams, questioned by Assistant Sol. Gen. Tom Luck on why he signed certain refund applications which included payments to the Morgan and Clark firms, said, "Based on Jim E. Jones' signature, I signed this document."

He said he based that approval "on what appeared to be his signature."

The question of whether certain documents were signed by Jones will be a big defense contention.

The state has indicated it may take three days to complete the case. The case recessed Tuesday at 5:45 p.m.

Second state witness was Wyman D. Harris, former Revenue department personnel officer and deputy revenue commissioner, who said he had signed some of the applications. He said he recognized the signature of Jones.

"I asked him if everything was in order and he said it was and I signed it," he said of one of the documents.

L. E. Enlow, a former auditor, testified he audited the refund application and he never recalled hearing the name of Morgan Transfer and Storage Co.

"I never recall seeing any on Morgan Transfer and Storage Co," he said. Under cross-examination, he added there were "so many" applications he could not remember the names of applicants if he heard them.

W. E. Strickland, Revenue department comptroller, and Mrs. Mattie McCain, an accounting clerk, both testified that no one besides Jones ever picked up the refund checks.

Mrs. Jacquelin Roberts, Jones' former secretary, said she typed the refund application requisition. She said Jones personally handed

Bandit's 'Toy' Pistol Fires, Misses Grocer

An Atlanta grocer Tuesday attacked a would-be bandit with an iron pipe, thinking that the pistol carried by the holdup man was a toy.

The holdup man fired the gun. Looking at a bullet hole blasted into the back of his store at 607 Edgewood Ave., NE, the grocer, L. P. Blackman, admitted he was mistaken about the gun.

The youthful Negro with the gun fled after Blackman's attack, however, and failed to get the money from the store.

her the refund checks when they were prepared and directed her to send them to the firms involved.

R. L. Boyett, who succeeded Jones as head of the motor fuel tax refund unit, testified that after he took over the office he was unable to find any record, bond, correspondence or record of any tax payment in the name of Morgan Transfer and Storage Co. Only the refund application forms.

Aldermen Put Off Zoning Showdown

Aldermen girding for a battle over whether to put a Negro housing project on the old Eggleston Hospital site are being asked to hold their fire—possibly for several weeks.

A hearing originally scheduled to be held Monday now appears to be postponed. Alderman Milton Farris, zoning committee chairman, said Tuesday he was contacting other aldermen and asking them if they would approve of the delay needed to study new evidence.

Farris said he had requested the delay because developments since a public hearing by his committee indicated a detailed study of the controversy would be necessary before the aldermanic council could act.

RENEWAL JEOPARDIZED

The developments include a statement by city officials that failure to get the property zoned for the housing project would jeopardize the city's entire urban renewal program. Another development is the fact that strong opposition to the project has arisen.

Mayor Hartsfield promptly endorsed the plan to delay action on the property. He said it would be better to bring the project up before the board at the same time that a second housing project—for Bankhead road at High-tower road—is brought up.

The Eggleston property, on Forest avenue, NE, is zoned presently for light industrial use. The Atlanta Housing Authority has purchased the property and asked that it be zoned for apartment use. It wants to build a group of apartments for 350 Negro families that will be displaced by urban renewal projects.

REZONING OPPOSED

Property owners, both residential and industrial, in the area are opposing the rezoning.

The city has said it must have the apartments or the urban renewal slum clearance program will be halted due to lack of relocation housing. Relocation is a condition of urban renewal contracts between city and federal agencies.

Farris was not present at the Nov. 19 public hearing of his committee on the Eggleston property. At that meeting the vote was a two-to-two tie on rezoning. This puts the issue up to the full aldermanic council.

NOT COMMITTED

Farris said Tuesday he is not committed one way or the other on the issue. He said he wanted time to study the matter.

The aldermen usually place a great deal of emphasis on the vote of its zoning committee in matters like this. Farris' vote would be the deciding one if the committee met again.

New Gas Rate Rise Asked

WASHINGTON (AP)—Southern Natural Gas Co., Birmingham, Ala., Tuesday filed a proposed $7,756,000, or 8.3 per cent, annual wholesale natural gas rate increase with the Federal Power Commission. The company, serving about 97 wholesale customers in Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi and South Carolina, including the Atlanta Gas Light Co., wants to make the higher rates effective Jan. 1. The increase would be in addition to a previously suspended $10,035,000 annual increase which became effective Nov. 1, subject to refund of any amounts disallowed by the commission upon conclusion of the proceedings.

There's a New Look In Garters for '60

By RAYMONDE ALEXANDER
Constitution Fashion Editor

Dearie, do you remember when girls rolled their stockings and finished them off with a pretty ruffled ribbon garter?

You do! Well, there's nothing new in this for you. But there may be some consolation because maybe the '20s weren't so rip-roaring crazy as they are remembered. For gals are going in for those garters all over again and it's soon to be the nifty '60s we're living in.

In the '20s there was definitely a need for garters. Stockings had to be kept up. But now the new garter isn't needed to hold anything up or down. It is strictly on its own. And it's no mere ruffled ribbon band either.

It's strictly ornamental and if you don't make the most of it, you can just leave your skirts mid-calf length and let the parade of one of woman's prettiest features pass you by.

After all the rising skirt level is calling attention to the knees. So let the knees tease by wearing one garter that's a real eye-catcher.

Let it be a bangle or a bangle that twinkles, dangles, flirts, and vamps. The new garter is not meant for utility but frankly for seduction. It must have an ornament or something dangling.

Just think of the whoopee when a roving eye sights the tiny pistol you're packing in a white satin holster on a black lace garter. And when the winks start signaling your way you can bet someone has caught the blinking of your green jewel flashing from a black lace garter.

There is no reason why you can't keep your mink on all the time when you wear it bowed on a dimpled knee. This, too, is a garter of black lace.

There's even a special "going away" garter for the bride who knows what it takes to make a happy marriage. This one is blue satin ringed with

Decolletage— Wow! It Slides

BRUSSELS (WNS) — Madame Pimprelle, the Belgian couturiere, is introducing evening gowns with decolletage that can be lifted modestly to shoulder height or dropped daringly to new lows by the simple pull of a ribbon. "A woman should be able to set her sights properly according to the victim," she declared.

white lace dangling a wedding band and a spray of lilies of the valley.

Other current versions noted in passing are shocking pink velvet garters with flirty black silk fringe, black velvet with ermine tails dangling, change-purse garter with tiny wallet and miniature change-purse attached. Two noisy coins tinkle and attract attention when you walk.

Pick these up by the hands—ful to hide in the toe of Christmas stockings as the grand surprise for the feminine names on your gift list. This is the kind of fad that every gal should own because of the terrific kick she will get from wearing it and men will get from staring at it.

Decatur Woman Writes Novel for Teen-Agers

By BETTY CARROLLTON
Vicki Jones dashed breathlessly into her classroom at Midway school to proudly explain to her teacher:

"The reason my hair is so messy this morning is that my mother had to catch a plane to New York to have dinner with a literary agent and a d-t-w-o-e-d-i-t-s-a-gonna-be-published-right-away!"

It was a single sentence that left Vicki even more breathless. And into it was packed the pride and love of a 10½-year-old for her talented mother.

Indirectly, Vicki inspired her mother's first novel, "The Wonderful World Outside," a sensitive and refreshing book with special appeal for teen-ager girls. Just off the presses of Dodd, Mead & Co., the novel won Mrs. Dorothy Holder Jones the publisher's summer literary award, and a condensation of it appears in the current issue of a national teen magazine.

Although she's been writing for years (Mrs. Jones' first literary effort was a "sequel" to "Heidi," which she penned at the age of nine), it was not until this year that she approached the world of teen-agers with her plots-and-pens.

"I frequently brought juvenile novels home for my children (Mr. and Mrs. Jones also have a son, Bryan, 13) to read," the author explained. "Usually, they were the same books I read as I was growing up. I assumed my children would love them as I did."

But time after time, the books were put aside after only a few pages had been read. The Jones youngsters dismissed them as being "awfully dull for us."

Mrs. Jones soon realized there seems to be a drought of contemporary juvenile novels.

"Parents bemoans the violence of TV, the influence of comic books on our young people," she observed, "but the books we select for them to read are those we were interested in. There seem to be too few that keep the interest of the modern teen-ager."

So she settled down—between household chores—to "do something worthwhile" in that field. "The Wonderful World Outside" is the result.

The Texas-born writer, a diminutive brunette with flashing dark eyes and a winsome smile, laboriously penned stories and essays (many of which kept her at the head of her English classes) during her teen years. For a while, her love for art, and a talent with brush and palette, lured her from the pad and pencil.

"I attended 13 schools in Texas, Kansas and Georgia," she recalled. "I found plenty to write about in all of them."

A graduate of Girls High School in Atlanta, Mrs. Jones studied commercial art for a while at Georgia Evening College. After she married Thomas A. Jones Jr., she spent "a fascinating year" living in several states to be near him while he was in service. She worked in a plastic factory, served as a government clerk and receptionist for the Civil Service.

It was not until 1950 that her long-neglected desire to be a writer emerged in serious form. Then she began to sell articles and short stories that have appeared in more than 40 national magazines. For a while, Mr. Jones teamed his hobby of photography with his wife's pen work which appeared in many trade journals.

In the back of her mind was always the dream of writing a book.

But Mrs. Jones still does not see herself as a career woman. And, until recently, her family never really considered her a writer.

Her typewriter vies with pots, pans and the kitchen range for attention, with Mrs. Jones limiting her writing to "between chores."

"During the summer when the children are not in school," she said, "I don't even try to write. Other months, any time I can get in a couple of hours of writing, I consider it a good day's work. My family's interest always comes first."

MEMBERS OF THE GRADY WIVES CLUB are busy with plans for their annual charity dance to be held Thursday, Dec. 10, from 9 to 1 o'clock in the Sky Room of the Atlanta Municipal Auditorium, with proceeds going to Grady Hospital.

LET'S GO MARKETING

Market Spotlight Shines On Avocados, Nuts, Pork

By BARBARA SOMERVILLE

Constitution Food Editor
Avocados are plentiful and cheap this week, according to Mrs. Betty Alexander, Extension consumer information specialist. Be cautious, she says, when you pinch or poke avocados to make your selection. Their soft flesh will bruise easily.

If the avocado "gives"—feels slightly soft to the touch—it is ready to eat. Keep in mind that avocados are always harvested while they are still firm—they will soften naturally at room temperature.

NUTS FOR THE HOLIDAYS

Pecans, filberts, almonds, Brazil nuts and walnuts are all plentiful and reasonably priced. To shell, or not to shell may be the question in your mind. If so, these figures may give you the answer: About 2½ pounds of filberts will give a pound of nutmeats; 2½ pounds of walnuts and 2 pounds of almonds, pecans, or Brazil nuts will make a pound of nutmeats.

SAVE WITH PORK

Pork cuts stand way out in front for red meat economy. For a complete change of entrée, have barbecued pork steaks. The small-sized family can buy a good-sized Boston Butt roast and cut some steaks from it—and still have a roast.

HOLIDAY HINTS

Keep in mind your food market when searching for Christmas presents—especially if you are a shopper with limited hunting time. A gift selected from the vast and lovely assortment of foods might be nuts in the shell; dried dates, figs, raisins; fresh apples, pears, citrus fruits; canned hams or canned seafood delicacies; assortments

HARNETT KANE "HAS PEN, WILL AUTOGRAPH" ALSO FEMININE FANS
From Left, Mrs. Lamar C. Cochran, Mrs. Raymond Trimble, Mrs. Roland Neeson, Mrs. T. J. Baldwin, Mrs. Lillian Greyson and Miss Sallie Beattie

'Anniversary Party' Honors Bachelor Author Harnett Kane

By YOLANDE GWIN

There were all those women crowded around a table.

"Just another clearance sale," said somebody.

A child pulled at her mother's skirt and whimpered: "Come on Mama I want to see the big tree."

About six or eight women got off the escalator and went rushing over to join the group. One of them said:

"Maybe he will give me his pen. I could frame it and hang it over the bookcase."

Her companion said, "Don't be silly, you know he won't give you his pen. That's standard equipment with him."

MOB SCENE

Joining the holiday mob scene, we pushed through for a front-line attack on whatever was on the other side of the human bulwark. There sat a small man, no not Santa Claus—he's in the igloo, but Harnett Kane, surrounded by women. Everybody was talking at once, which wasn't so unusual because "everybody, except one, was a woman."

Stacked in front of Mr. Kane were copies of his latest book, "Have Pen Will Autograph."

"This is an anniversary party," somebody was heard to say.

"How thrilling, how long have you been married, Mr. Kane?"

Mr. Kane gave her a big, broad smile, winked and said, "Madame, nobody ever asked me. I'm a bachelor."

The anniversary it seemed was linked with the publication of his 20th book, "Have Pen Will Autograph." Mr. Kane's books—one every year for the past 20—have done very well for this prolific New Orleans writer. All have been best sellers and have sold around five million copies. "The Gallant Mrs. Stonewall," the story of Gen. Stonewall Jackson's wife, is still No. 1 on Kane's best selling list with 1,100,000. This latest book is full of humor and relates his experiences during his autographing book tours.

SOMETHING INTIMATE

"Write something intimate in this book," said one woman as she handed him a copy, "but make these two a little bit more formal, because they are for Christmas presents."

Another woman came up and asked: "Mr. Kane, since you have written so much about the Confederacy, could you help me get into the Daughters of the Confederacy? I have quite a lot about the Civil War and if you are in town long enough, I'd like for you to read my grandfather's diary. Maybe you could use some in one of your books. But you'll have to pay me for the information."

Mr. Kane wiped his brow and said "thank you" and went right on autographing books.

Somebody asked him if he always wore a brown suit. "The last time you were here it was brown," she said.

Yes, Mr. Kane, always wears brown suits, and white shirts. He takes two suits on tour with him, plus a tuxedo, and about six shirts.

"Do you write your books with a pencil or a pen," somebody asked.

EIGHT HOURS

"No, I write on the typewriter and put in about eight hours a day," said the little man with the pen. "I write in my studio and I have mood music. Wagner isn't my favorite."

A woman came up and took off her coat, pulled up a chair and sat down by Mr. Kane and said:

"Well, now tell me everything you have done since you were here the last time," she demanded.

"Well . . ." began Mr. Kane. "Don't hold anything back, because I'm going to take notes and use you as a character in the book I'm writing," she rattled on. "It's going to be about this man who . . ."

PUSHED THROUGH

Then a woman pushed through and said, "Well, I just had to come over and see you with my own eyes, because one of my friends said that Norman Vincent Peale was here this week!"

"But I'm Harnett Kane," stammered the author.

"Wonder what he calls himself that name for," whispered another in the gathering. "You know what my neighbor said? Said he was really Father Murphy because he wrote those books with the nuns in them. Really, it sounds better to be Father Murphy than Harnett Kane writing like that."

A clerk in the book department where the autographing took place came over and handed Mr. Kane a telegram.

"Must be from some woman," smirked a watcher. "He really packs them in, doesn't he?"

It was. The wire read, "Autograph one book and charge to Mrs. F. M. Hauser. Best wishes. (Signed) Harriet Hauser."

Mrs. Hauser is herself an author and wrote "Hentz of Things Not Seen."

Mr. Kane had pen and autographed another book. Something he has done about 750,000 times.

After Reading Saki, I May Not Buy Any More Christmas Gifts

Well, it's what I get for trying to do my Christmas shopping early. I can no more resist a gigantic splendid sale than a fisherman can resist a stream full of trout. Not that I always buy, you understand, but I have to get in there and wet a hook. I have to wander around looking at the people, kitbitzing on their shopping, eavesdropping on their conversations.

Last week when our stores were having that big country festival kind of sale I hurried over to get in the fray in company with a male friend who wished to do a little bit of preliminary Santa Claus shopping for his children. I was able to give him some valuable pointers, I'm glad to say, but he could have advised me and he didn't.

My advice to him was to park his manners on the sidewalk, to leave off opening doors for ladies and holding back courteously in the race for the escalator. I pointed out that if he stopped to pick up packages dropped by a pregnant shopper he would be trampled to death by the thundering herd and I explained that in the game of clerk-clerk-who's-got-the-clerk it's dog eat dog. Play by the Queensberry rules, I told him, and you not only won't get waited on but every woman in the store will know you for what you are—a party-waist type with no sporting blood.

My advice seemed to unnerv him. (His mama raised him nice. Easy enough in a little country town where there were no big sales.) Then a dreadnaught type lady for whom he held open a door impaled him on her umbrella, drawing blood. He returned to the office shaking uncontrollably and I expect that night he turned the total Santa Claus job over to his wife, poor wretch.

But woman-like, I was merely stimulated by my noontime brush with the department store legions. I went back for more and ended up at the tie counter. The gentleman who benefitted by my advice should have warned me against buying ties. But he didn't and in an expansive and self-confident moment I broke down and squandered 69 cents on a gorgeous arrangement of technicolored scrambled eggs, which I took home and hid under the bed.

As luck would have it that was the night I started reading a marvelous windfall of a book, the short stories of Saki. Now I've heard of the English humorist, H. H. Munro, who wrote under the name of Saki all my life but I felt a reluctance to tackle his stories until a friend sent me a copy with a must-read note. The whole collection is a joyful experience and early in the volume there's one called "Reginald on Christmas Presents."

Reginald, an effete, foppish young Britisher who apparently flourished in London society early in this century, had this to say about neckties:

"There is, for instance, the female relative in the country who 'knows a tie is always useful,' and sends you some spotted horror that you could only wear in secret or in Tottenham Court Road. It might have been useful had she kept it to tie up currant bushes with, when it would have served the double purpose of supporting the branches and frightening away the birds—for it is an admitted fact that the ordinary tomtit of commerce has a sounder aesthetic taste than the average female relative in the country."

Aunts, Reginald continues, are notoriously poor gift selectors unless they happen to be aunts "with a dash of foreign extraction in them." These are the best aunts, he thinks, "but if you can't choose your aunt, it is wisest in the long run to choose the present and send her the bill." Reginald thinks there are plenty of sensible gifts to be had—"not to speak of luxuries, such as having one's bills paid, or getting something quite sweet in the way of jewelry." He admits that "unlike the alleged Good Woman of the Bible, I'm not above rubies." And she, he observes wistfully, "must have been rather a problem at Christmastime; nothing short of a blank cheque would have fitted the situation."

Oh after reading Saki I regretted that tie. In fact, my confidence is so shaken I may not try any more Christmas shopping at all. Or, better still, I may give everybody on my list a copy of the short stories of Saki. For those who can read, I couldn't do better.

Beware of the 'All Risk' Tag On a Personal Property Floater

Q. I have a daughter in college. I would like to protect her belongings against dormitory casualties. Can you tell me if a personal property insurance floater is a wise buy: Mrs. T. D. Pittsburgh.

A. A personal property floater is called an "all-risk" insurance policy. Mrs. T. D. It takes its name from the fact that it "floats" with the things an individual owns—wherever they may be. So in many ways it is ideal for your daughter.

But be aware of this: Despite its "all-risk" tag, a personal property floater does not insure against all casualties. It does insure against fire, lightning, windstorm, tornado, cyclone, hurricane, hail, earthquake, water damage, falling aircraft, motor vehicle damage, smudge, transportation mishaps, strikes, riots, malicious mischief, vandalism, holdup, burglary, theft, snow, spilled liquids, mysterious disappearance and carelessness of servants.

But you cannot collect for loss from normal wear and tear, deterioration, water backing up through a sewer or drain or mechanical breakdown. Nor can you collect against accidental breakage of fragile items. Should your daughter drop and break her glasses, for example, there would be no payoff.

Insured property usually is divided into two classes—scheduled and unscheduled. Unscheduled property means in general that not specifically mentioned. Blanket protection is provided for this. Possessions valuable enough to mention are listed or scheduled, and specific amounts of insurance may be assigned to them.

Even for unscheduled property, though, you may be asked to fill out a proposal form in which you state the approximate value of your daughter's belongings in each of 15 categories—such as clothing, musical instruments and cameras. You will be expected to take out insurance for at least 80 per cent of the total estimated values shown in this rundown—perhaps more.

Premiums vary from one area to another. But rates for unscheduled property are established by the rating bureaus that set fire insurance premi-

John Wesley's Cure for Baldness?

It's Described in Our Magazine

These interesting articles are coming in Sunday's Atlanta Journal and Constitution Magazine:

WESLEY COLLECTION... Emory University has a special collection of Wesleyana in its Candler School of Theology which depicts the life and loves of John Wesley. Katherine Barnwell, magazine staff writer, finds that the founder of the Methodist Church was a remarkably versatile man who spoke and wrote on such diverse subjects as the gospel of Christianity, the proper behavior of wives and a recipe for curing baldness.

ISN'T YOUR WIFE A BRUNETTE?... If you see the husband of a brunette out with a stunning blonde, don't faint! His wife just might be sporting a new wig. Olive Ann Burns notes that false hair is quite the thing these days and a gal can sport a dyed-to-match pony tail or a flaming red wig, depending on which style she prefers. One thing for sure, wigs can make a woman look excitingly different.

ADVENTURE IN THE FAR EAST... Deborah Eason of Atlanta realized the dream of a lifetime recently when she spent a two-week vacation exploring Tokyo, Bangkok and Hong Kong. Now, with a storehouse of adventure and photographs, she takes you on a tour of the Far East.

State Opens Road Bids Dec. 18

The State Highway Department will receive bids on three, or maybe four, interstate projects at a meeting Dec. 18.

In announcing the plans Tuesday, State Highway Board Chairman Jim Gillis said the fourth project is contingent on acquiring rights-of-way and approval of the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads prior to the letting.

This project would cover some 5.8 miles of grading and paving on Interstate 75 in Lowndes County between the present end of the construction and Georgia 38 near the Valdosta city limits.

The other interstate projects included in the program, which also covers 14 other type contracts, call for work on Interstate 75 near Ringgold and in Dooly and Houston counties.

The North Georgia project—divided into two contracts—would provide 7.1 miles of grading for future four-lane paving and the building of one single bridge, six double grade separations and two double stream bridges.

The Dooly-Houston project calls for 7.639 of grading on Interstate 75 beginning near Pinehurst and extending north to a point near the Dooly-Houston county line.

The other projects, by counties:

FEDERAL AID
Atkinson-Coffee—4.255 miles grading, paving and one bridge on Ga. 149 north of Marietta.
Coweta—2.519 miles grading, paving and one bridge on Ga. 1797 north of Newnan.
Fulton-Gwinnett—Bridge and 0.586 mile paved approach at the Chattahoochee River on the Alpharetta-Duluth road.
Glascock—1.241 miles grading and paving on the Sparta-Louisville road.
Gwinnett—4.174 miles grading for future divided lane paving, one double and three single bridges on the Atlanta-Athens road.
Oglethorpe-Madison—Three bridges and 0.945 mile paved approaches on the Crawford-Obert road.
Schley-Macon—7.481 miles grading and paving on Ga. 240 and 195.
Stewart—Two bridges on the Lumpkin-Cocoa road.
Wilkes-McCuff—31.252 miles grading, paving and two bridges on the Washington-Thomson road.

STATE AID
Bartow—0.43 mile resurfacing on West Main street and Elowah drive in Cartersville.
Franklin—7.487 miles paving and one bridge on the Parham-Haves Crossing road and on the new Bohamah Church-Aiken Church road.
Gilmer—Bridge over the Coosawattee River.
Hoard—0.75 mile paving in Corinth.
Terrell—4.843 miles grading and paving on the Cranford road.

Record Output Carmaker Aim In Next Quarter

DETROIT (AP)—The auto industry will try to build more cars in the first three months of 1960 than it has in any quarter in history, Ward's Automotive Reports said Tuesday.

The statistical agency said that, providing steel is available, production schedules of the five auto-makers call for assembly of 2,240,800 cars between Jan. 1 and March 31, an attempt to make up production loss because of the steel shortage.

This would beat the record first quarter of 1955 by 111,800.

AND AFFILIATES IN ATLANTA

A Familiar Scene

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—Earl Mann and John Quinn were sitting at the luncheon table in the Vinoy Park Hotel Tuesday and for an absent-minded moment you expected to hear the two men plotting Atlanta's baseball plans for 1960.

Through the years you'd seen them huddled at many other tables at minor league conventions. Now, of course, Mann is out of baseball and Quinn has shifted operations from Milwaukee to Philadelphia.

During nine pleasant seasons Mann and Quinn collaborated to promote Atlanta's most successful baseball era. Employing Milwaukee talent, the Crackers raised four pennants over that span and enjoyed three other first-division clubs.

The Atlanta franchise is now available to any applicant, and a man asked Quinn if he were interested in running a Philadelphia farm at Poncey.

"I'd be interested," Quinn replied, "but we're rebuilding and we simply don't have the available talent to run a Double-A team there now."

Like practically all the major and minor league officials attending the convention, Quinn hopes Atlanta remains in baseball. During the two-day session here, however, there has been no concrete evidence that the lights will go on again at Poncey next summer.

Several minor league operators have an eye on the vacant franchise, but they don't have the players and the necessary bankroll.

Ironically, Jack DeFoe, president of the New Orleans Pelis, tossed his hat into the ring Tuesday.

"I'm seriously interested in Atlanta," DeFoe said. "Atlanta is the New York of the South, and baseball can't afford to lose the city. I wouldn't go into this thing by myself, but I'll put up $35,000, if two other men will put up the same amount." DeFoe, a highly successful businessman, can ante-up the dough right now, but two other guys with $35's haven't been uncovered.

—Braves Discuss Operation Atlanta

Thus, as mentioned in this space Monday, the decision on Atlanta's immediate baseball future will be made in Milwaukee. The Braves have the two essentials, players and money, but they aren't too eager to invest in the Southern.

On the other hand, the Braves haven't ruled out the possibility of tending the farm.

"We talked about working in Atlanta this morning," Vice President Birdie Tebbetts said, "but we aren't apt to make a decision for some time. It's at least a $250,000 operation, and you don't rush into something like that."

It's no secret that major league clubs are reluctant to operate in the Southern due to the ban on Negro players, and the Braves are no exception. But, as Tebbetts says, there's still a long-shot possibility that the Braves will take over the Atlanta franchise.

Conversation about Triple A is nothing more than idle conversation, because no franchise is available. Due to the uncertain situation in Cuba, the International League would like to pull out of Havana. However, Havana has been approved by the directors and included in the new schedule. If a crisis arises in Cuba a franchise will be available, and you hear discussion here that Atlanta would be first choice as a successor to Havana.

Since Charlie Hurth is the president of the Southern Association, it's only natural that he's trying to keep the best city in the league in the active family. But Hurth has achieved no success in his search for an Atlanta tenant. He said Tuesday afternoon that the picture is unchanged.

—The First Continental Farm Club

Meanwhile, it's the same old story on the convention front. Everyone from Casey Stengel to unemployed Class D pilots is here, and you hear them talking shop and trades. But, as usual, most of the chatter doesn't produce deals. Strangely enough, Stengel wasn't making much noise. The Yankee man declined an invitation to a press conference, pointing out that this is December instead of March.

Erin Johnson of Waycross talked working agreements with the Major Leaguers in hopes of reviving the Georgia-Florida League. He hasn't lined up the necessary aid, but he still has hopes.

Sale of the Jacksonville franchise to Craig Cullinan, the rich Houston citizen, has attracted a great deal of attention and produced a unique situation.

Cullinan, who owns the Continental League franchise in Houston, bought the Sally League club as a farm team. Thus, Jacksonville becomes the first farm team on record without an active parent. Cullinan doesn't own the Houston club in the American Association, merely the Continental franchise.

Jacksonville has a working agreement with Milwaukee, so you have the snarled operation of a National League team stocking a Continental franchise with players.

"No one can say that we aren't cooperating with the new league," Tebbetts remarked during a discussion of the wacky setup. "We've supported the new league from the start, and I'm glad to see one of the clubs setting up a farm system."

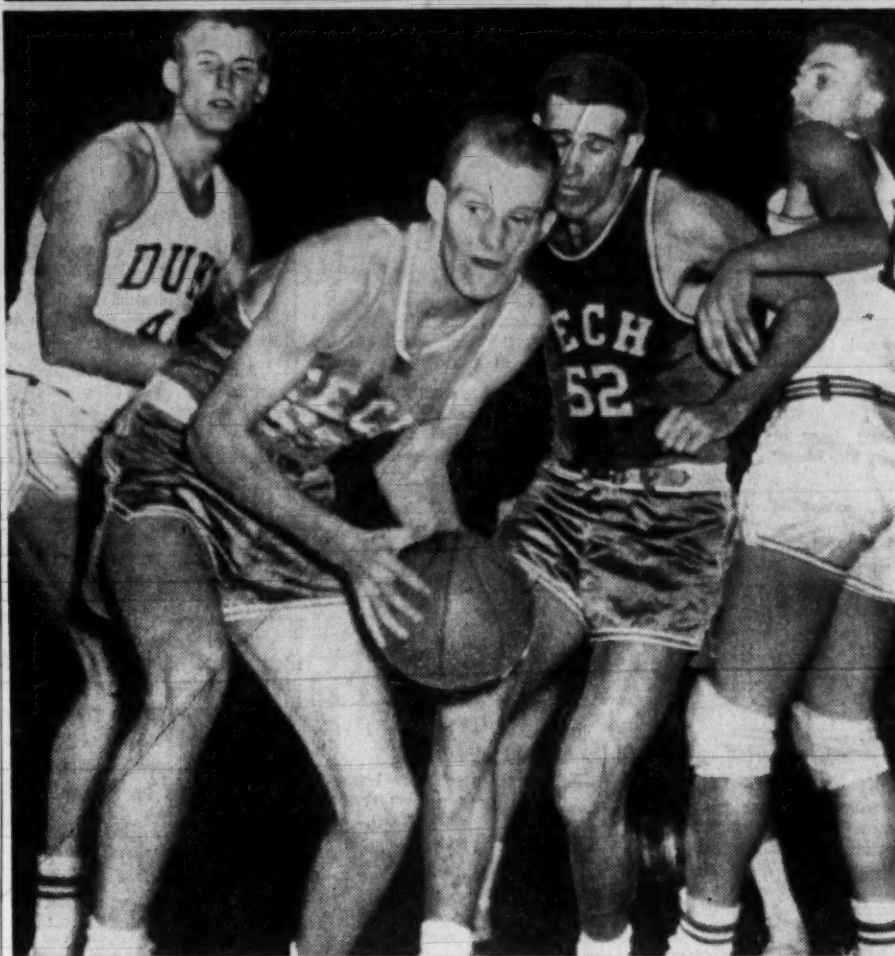

That's baseball, a peculiar business which often snubs progress.

Spree Cancels Duke Lead

Special to The Constitution

DURHAM, N.C.—Georgia Tech missed its first nine shots from the floor here Tuesday night, and then followed Capt. Roger Kaiser's 20-point spree to capture the Duke Blue Devils, 59-49, in an inter-conference basketball game.

The ranking Devils, 19th in the nation in some pre-season polls, broke to a 10-2 lead after five minutes and 13 seconds were gone in the first period before Jim Riley, 6-8 center, hit the first field goal for Coach Whack Hyder's Jackets.

Right after that, Tech of the Southeastern Conference took a 14-13 lead over Duke of the Atlantic Coast Conference, with nine minutes left in the half.

Before the intermission the score was knotted at 15-15, 20-20, and 23-23. Tech left the floor at halftime with a 34-27 lead.

In the second half Duke came back strong and took a 45-44 lead with seven minutes and 12 seconds left in the opener for both schools. After that, the Devils didn't get another field goal.

While Tech had trouble in the opening minutes, they came back fast in the fading minutes, hitting 12 of 18 floor two-pointers in the last five minutes of the opening half.

Leading scorer for the Jackets was Kaiser with 20 points. He hit eight for eight free tosses and six for 17 shots from the floor. Riley topped the Jackets on rebounds with 10.

Darrah Paces Georgia Win

Oglethorpe Falls, 68-50;
Bulldog Captain Nets 21

By AL THOMY
Constitution Sports Writer

ATHENS—Captain Gordon Darrah's long-range firing popped the heart out of Oglethorpe's zone defense, and Georgia ripped to a 68-50 basketball victory in ancient Woodruff Hall Tuesday night.

It was the opening game for both teams, and some 2,000 fans turned out to welcome the bounce ball season.

When the Stormy Petrels, aiming for an upset in the major leagues, jammed the inside, Darrah shifted the Bulldog attack to the outside and personally showed the way with 21 big points. He fired 15 times, hit on eight and added five of six from the foul line.

The Petrels, riding a 19-game winning streak, were unable to contain Darrah, and his team-

Baughan Makes UPI All-America

NEW YORK (UPI)—United Press International Tuesday presents its 1959 All-American football team chosen by the ballots of 359 sportswriters and broadcasters from all parts of the nation.

Chosen as the finest collegiate players in the land at their positions were:

Ends—Monty Stickles, Notre Dame and Bill Carpenter, Army.

Tackles—Dan Lanphear, Wisconsin and Don Floyd, Texas Christian.

Guards—Roger Davis, Syracuse and Bill Burrell, Illinois.

Center—Max Baughan, Georgia Tech.

Quarterback—Richie Lucas, Penn State.

Halfbacks—Billy Cannon, Louisiana State and Don Burton, Northwestern.

Fullback—Charles Flowers, Mississippi.

Cannon, the spark-plug of Louisiana State's Sugar Bowl bound Tigers, is the only repeater from the 1958 UPI All-American team and this year, as last, led the balloting.

He received a total of 3,048 points, the second strongest showing in the history of UPI's All-American teams. Cannon's point total was exceeded only in 1949, when Leon Hart, Notre Dame end, amassed 3,369 points. That year a total of 352 ballots was cast; this year there were 359, an all-time high. Cannon received 300 first-place votes and 28 second-team ballots. Eleven points are given for a first-team vote, six for a second.

Geographically, the Midwest, as usual, dominates this dream team, winning four positions, against three each from the South and East and one from the Southwest. The Far West, the Rockies and the midlands failed to land a single player, although the Pacific Coast landed three berths on the second team.

Thomson Traded to Boston; Will Spahn Go to Yankees?

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI)—Bobby Thomson, a popular National Leaguer for 14 seasons, was traded to the American League Tuesday and there were reports that Warren Spahn would follow shortly.

The Boston Red Sox, preparing for the return of Ted Williams, acquired Thomson from the Chicago Cubs to alternate in left field with their famed 41-year-old slugger next season. In return the Sox gave the Cubs Al Schroll, a 26-year-old right-handed pitcher.

At the same time, it was learned the New York Yankees have made a firm offer for Spahn, regarded as baseball's outstanding left-handed pitcher.

In an effort to get the 38-year-old Spahn, the Yankees reportedly offered infielder Gil McDougald and outfielder Hank Bauer.

The Braves are known to be "thinking over" the proposed deal. Both teams have scheduled a meeting for further discussion next week when the winter baseball confab shifts to Miami Beach.

Milwaukee needs a second baseman desperately and feels McDougald could fill the bill. Although he batted only .251 last season, the Braves believe the 31-year-old McDougald has a few good years left.

They are not so high on 37-year-old Bauer, however, and would prefer infielders. Young Fritz Brickell may be thrown into the package.

With such young pitchers as Carlton Willey, Juan Pizarro and Joey Jay, the Braves could part with Spahn to fill some of their other needs. The Yankees believe the 10-season, 20-game winning lefty could be a big winner for another season or two pitching in spacious Yankee Stadium.

Cannon Wins Heisman Cup

Dodd, Trippi Admitted to Hall; Penn's Sebo Out, Stiegman In

From Press Dispatches

Billy Cannon, hailed as the greatest college football player in the U.S., was officially proclaimed to be just that Tuesday when he was named to receive the cherished Heisman Trophy.

The Louisiana State University halfback was third in the voting in 1958 after leading the Bayou Bengals to an unbeaten season and the national championship. The 6-1, 210-pounder, was selected over Penn State's Richie Lucas and SMU's Don Meredith. Pete Dawkins won last year. Cannon will be honored Dec. 9 by the New York Downtown Athletic Club, which handles the voting.

Vice President Richard Nixon will present the trophy. It will be the second time in the 25-year history the mantle piece has gone to a Southeastern Conference player. Frankie Sinkwich of Georgia was the only other SEC player to receive it.

Flowers of Ole Miss topped the league's scorers with 66 points, while Vandy halfback Tom Moore was second with 60. Kentucky's Calvin Bird was third with 55. Cannon and Auburn fullback Ed Dyer had 44 points each.

Florida punter Bobby Joe Green broke a 20-year-old punting record in the SEC this fall, kicking 54 times for a 44.9-yard-per-kick average. Auburn's Dick McGowan held the previous record with 50 kicks and a 43-yard-per-punt average.

Georgia Tech head coach and athletic director Bobby Dodd and Georgia's immortal halfback Charley Trippi, were in New York to receive Football Hall of Fame Honors. Also there was Clemson coach Banks McFadden.

IVY LEAGUE — Steve Sebo of Penn was fired and succeeded by Rutgers' John Stiegman. Dr. John Bateman of Penn was named to succeed Stiegman.

ACC — A report that Billy Murray was out as head football coach at Duke was branded a "wild rumor" by Eddie Cameron, Duke athletic director. Duke lost its last game, 50-0, to North Carolina on Thanksgiving Day. The Devils, with a 4-6 record, that their worst season in 30 years.

PRO REPORT — Coach Jim Lee Howell of the New York Giants is expected to report to the Colts' training headquarters next summer, where he may be joined by All-America guard Zeke Smith, center Jack Burkett and tackle Teddy Foret.

After a southern junior season as a passer, Wood never fully returned to top form as a junior. He was injured in last week's finale against Alabama.

Smith and Burkett are considering offers from the Colts and the New York entry in the new American Football League. Foret has expressed a desire to play pro football.

Quarterback Richard Wood, Auburn's 6-5 football slingshot, has signed a professional contract with the Baltimore Colts.

Wood is expected to report to the Colts' training headquarters next summer, where he may be joined by All-America guard Zeke Smith, center Jack Burkett and tackle Teddy Foret.

After a southern junior season as a passer, Wood never fully returned to top form as a junior. He was injured in last week's finale against Alabama.

BAUGHAN NAMED, TOO

Tarkenton, Vickers Head All-SEC Football Squad

By MERCER BAILEY

Associated Press Sports Writer

The four Southeastern Conference teams which won bowl trips placed seven players on the 1959 All-SEC football team announced today by the Associated Press.

Mississippi, ranked second nationally and headed for a Sugar Bowl battle with Louisiana State, led the list with three all-stars—fullback Charles Flowers, guard Marvin Terrell and end Larry Grantham.

Billy Cannon, one of the greatest halfbacks the SEC ever produced, represents LSU, the nation's third-ranked power.

Georgia, which will meet Missouri in the Orange Bowl, provided quarterback Francis Tarkenton, one of the two juniors on the honor team, and end Jimmy Vickers.

Center Maxie Baughan represents Georgia Tech, which will battle Arkansas in the Gator Bowl Jan. 2.

the high-powered backfield. Ken Rice of Auburn, the team's other junior, and Joe Schaffer of Tennessee won the tackle berths and Auburn's Zeke Smith teams with Terrell at guard.

Rice, Terrell, Cannon, Moore and Flowers all were unanimous choices of the AP's Southeast regional All-America Advisory Board members, who screened all-star talent all season and selected the All-SEC team.

Tarkenton, a precision passer, fine ball handler and inspirational field leader, barely nosed out another tremendous junior, Jake Gibbs of Mississippi, at quarterback.

Baughan, the heart of Tech's defense, won the center spot in a close contest with Mississippi State's impressive Tom Goode and Auburn's Jackie Burkett. Burkett was All-SEC last year but has been handicapped some this year by injuries.

Cannon, Flowers and Smith are repeaters from the 1958 honor team. Moore, Flowers and Cannon, a 1958 All-America, provide all the power, speed, kicking, pass catching and defensive abilities a coach could ask. The linemen, averaging 212 pounds a man, are tough and agile.

Conference-wise the team is dominated by the Big Ten and Southeastern conferences, each with three players. There was only one close race, for the center position. Baughan beat out Jackie Burkett of Auburn by only 37 points.

The line of this team averages 219 pounds with Davis the heaviest at 228 and Carpenter and Burrell the lightest at 210. The backfield averages 194 pounds with Cannon the heaviest at 208 and Lucas and Burton the light-weights at 185 each.

Rounding out the second team are guards Zeke Smith and Burkett, both of Auburn; and backs Ernie Davis of Syracuse and Don Meredith of Southern Methodist.

Rounding out the third team are tackles Ken Rice of Auburn and Lou Cordileone of Clemson; guards Mike McGee of Duke and Jerry Stalcup of Wisconsin.

LIBERTY BOWL BOUND

TIDE SQUAD CHANGED HEART OF 'BEAR' WHO CRIED 'WOLF'

By JACK KAPLAN

The Bear who cried "wolf" came home to a $150,000 bowl of porridge, and the fairy tale at Alabama had a happy ending that would put Grimm to shame.

The Crimson Tide, who accepted a bid Monday to play Penn State in the newborn Liberty Bowl at Philadelphia Dec. 19, is "enthusiastic and ready to go," Coach Paul (Bear) Bryant said Tuesday.

The Bear indicated earlier that the Tide wasn't interested in any postseason game. What changed his mind?

"The players," he said.

"They really wanted to go up and play this game."

Bryant's last postseason trip with the Tide was in the 1938 Rose Bowl game when he attended as assistant coach. He said it felt "wonderful" to be taking the team himself after the 20-year interim.

Alabama will lay a 7-1-2 record on the line against Penn State's 8-2 mark.

"I don't have any idea what our chances are," Bryant said. "I haven't seen any films on Penn State and we don't have any scouting reports. Coach Rip Engle and myself will exchange some movies."

Why did the bowls wait so long before giving Alabama a bid after an outstanding season?

"You'll have to ask the bowl committees," he said.

Georgia Tech Coach Bobby Dodd laid some of the blame for a belated bid to Bryant himself. Dodd said Sunday that Bryant had "talked his team down" all year and the bowl committees evidently believed him.

"Maybe Dodd is right," Bryant said.

Ambrose (Bud) Dudley and George Kerrigan, copromoters of the Liberty Bowl said the Alabama-Penn State clash "will be an outstanding inaugural for football fans of the East who have desired a major bowl in their home area."

Dudley said he hoped for a crowd of 75,000 for the contest in the 100,000-seat Philadelphia Stadium. The teams will split 75 per cent of the gross receipts which includes television and concession rights.

Coach Engle's Nittany Lions dropped Miami, Georgia's Orange Bowl foe, Virginia Military Institute, Colgate, Army, Boston U., Illinois, West Virginia and Holy Cross, while losing to Syracuse and Pitt.

Alabama won over Houston, Chattanooga, Mississippi State, Tulane, Georgia Tech, Memphis State and arch-rival Auburn. They lost only to Georgia, SEC champions, and tied Vanderbilt and Tennessee.

Stocks Leap Near To 3-Month High

Year-End Rally Possible; Steels Rise on New Talks

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market swept to its highest point on average in nearly three months under the leadership of steel and chemical shares.

Brokers, traders and analysts alike were wondering whether the advance, coming as it did on Dec. 1, heralded the start of the traditional "year-end" rally. In 44 of the past 62 years, stocks have risen during December. It was noted that the advance, which added more than two-billion dollars to the quoted value of all stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange, provided what could be the kickoff.

STEEL BARGAINING
Resumption of negotiations between industry and union bargaining teams was given as the reason for the upsurge of steel shares. An added factor was a Washington report that President Eisenhower will lambaste both sides in a speech Thursday night.

Analysts found nothing in the news to account for the chemicals' rally, although they said many investors regard the shares as good buys.

Analysts also noted that the market blithely shrugged off the latest evidence of tight money, a record high rate for Treasury bills Monday and another hike in bankers' acceptances, a key short-term factor in the money market.

Also ignored, for the most part, was the Air Force decision to slow down development of the B70 bomber. North American Aviation, the prime contractor, was down only 3/4 at 37 1/2 on the news.

OTHER GAINS
Other groups on the upside were rubbers, nonferrous metals, oils, airlines and tobacco. Electronics had some fair gains, but more and bigger losses. With the market rising, investors apparently shifted their attention back to the seasoned, blue chip issues.

American Motors was most active stock for the second straight day, closing off at 2 1/2 on 152,900 shares. The compact car maker, whose directors voted a 3 for 1 stock split Monday, opened with a jump of 5 1/2 but gradually weakened.

American Stock Exchange prices were mixed. Corporate bonds closed lower in active trading, while U.S. government bonds were steady in light over-the-counter trading.

Ike Creates Georgia National Forest

By ALBERT RILEY
Constitution Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON—A new national forest has been established by President Eisenhower on 96,000 acres of federally owned land in north-central Georgia.

To be known as the Oconee National Forest, the land is located in Jasper, Putnam, Jones, Greene, Morgan, Oconee and Oglethorpe counties.

BOUGHT BY U.S.
The acreage was bought by the federal government during the New Deal years of the 1930s and the depleted and submarginal lands have been rehabilitated gradually as land-utilization projects.

Under the terms of President Eisenhower's proclamation establishing the national forest, the land will be administered by the U.S. Forest Service.

The forest service will pay 25 per cent of the proceeds from the lands, now producing timber, to the counties of the area in lieu of taxes.

SETTLES FOREST STATUS
Some of the counties, and the University of Georgia, have been interested in recent years in acquiring some of this federally owned land. But Eisenhower's proclamation now settles the forest status.

Sen. Russell has been interested for some time in having the national forest established and has been assisted by Sen. Talmadge.

The establishment of the Oconee National Forest gives Georgia two such forests, the other being the much larger Chattahoochee National Forest, covering 667,000 acres in North Georgia.

By executive order, the President also has given the Chattahoochee National Forest an additional 11,000 acres which have been held by the federal government in a land-utilization project near Dalton in Whitfield County.

Richard E. McCordie, chief of the U.S. Forest Service, announced the presidential action in letters to Russell and Talmadge. A spokesman said the change of the lands from utilization projects to national forests will not affect materially its administration, but will simplify procedures.

Red Vote Saves Swede Socialists

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The Communists saved Sweden's Socialist minority government Tuesday by abstaining on a general 4.17 per cent sales tax bill which passed by 185 to 178 votes.

Premier Tage Erlander had announced his Cabinet would resign if the bill failed. Seven Communist deputies abstained because the formation of a new, non-Socialist government would have "endangered Sweden's foreign policy of no alliances," said the Communist party leader, Hilding Hagberg.
